THE EDITOR SAYS—

Sunday afternoon we listened to a beautiful musical program that was full of harmony and tenderness. We leaned back in a rocker, closed our eyes and dreamed of pleasant things, of the new life to come, of things we would like to do to make others happy. We were rudely aroused from our dream by a change to a hillbilly band blaring some barn-storming fiddling that was classed as entertainment. Music on the lute will charm the deadly cobra, but we have an idea that a sudden change to hill-billy stuff, he would strike quick and would be justified.

Several years ago a tall barber of Sikeston who had a blond wife who was supposed to be hell on wheels, threw a picnic party for a number of men friends down about the Wolf Hole. This wife heard about it and hurried to the picnic ground just in time to see a case of Old Crow opened for the edification of the boys. She rushed out of the bushes and took possession of the booze before her husband could interfere, captured the case and one by one the long necked bottles were thrown into the ditch. The following year one of the boys hearing the ditch was to be dredged, got permission to be aboard the machine while this section of the ditch was being dredged and promised an even division with the dredge operator for all Old Crow turned up. Not a single bottle was found and this story just came to light Tuesday of this week.

The Missouri Historical Review of February contains an advertisement of Spring River Academy in Lawrence County, Mo., copied from the Springfield Advertiser of May 24, 1845, which, among other things, says: "Boarding will be furnished in private families in the vicinity, including washing, candles, etc., at the following rates, viz: Young ladies and gentlemen, per week, $1.00. chidren, 75c."

The first pot gutted Uncle Sam we have ever had the pleasure to see in either person or picture was shown in the home talent play Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium. In order not to get personal we shall call no names.

Excellent work has been accomplished in road building during the life of the State Highway Commission which was authorized as a nonpartisan commission. To be authorized and to be run on a nonpartisan basis are two different things. It was born during a Republican Administration, officers selected by a Republican administration and nearly every one of the best paying postions held by Republicans, and nearly every one is still held by Republicans. No criticism of work in road building, and no charge of graft that was a fact. The man who is ashamed of his politics is not deserving of a state job and why any member would be against the demand to probe the political standing of road employes would be strange. All adminstrative officials should be in sympathy with whatever political party is in power and the working force on a 50-50 basis. Or this is what one voter and one small tax payer thinks about it.

The Legislature of the state of Missouri has been warned from Washington that no more relief will be given the state unless the state does her part. The only way to meet this demand for aid is to pass a 2-cent sales tax and do it now. It may not please any one but it will raise the money, and at once. Real estate and personal property cannot stand all the tax for the support of state institutions, the schools and relief.

We haven't learned whether the "sex-lover" that we heard of in town was male or female, anyway, it is a new name for the same old thing.

The city has an unusual number of bird dogs of one breed or another that should soon be penned up for the summer. If they are valuable they should be taken care of. In town they are a danger and a nuisiance. They run over gardens and flower beds and have been the cause of many people losing their religion. This is time for our city officials to force dog owners to keep their dogs up just like feathered chickens are supposed to be kept up. Bird dogs always have the runarounds.

We are in receipt of a communication from R. S. Coleman, informing us that The Standard was wrong when it said in Tuesday edition that he had resigned as distributor of relief at the City Hall to old, feeble and sick. He says he was fired because he wanted to give out supplies to all who needed food, fuel and medicine. We don't know anything about the real reason, but we do know his communication was too personal toward those responsible for orders for relief. We are satisfied in our own mind that all relief headquarters have been frightfully imposed on by many who did not really need public relief and probably some who were entitled to it didn't get it.

Charles Tanner Dies After Long Illness

Charles Samuel Tanner, a native of Scott County and a member of a prominent pioneer family of Southeast Missouri, died at his home here Tuesday morning after a long illness.

Death was caused by a complication of diseases, including hardening of the arteries and partial paralysis.

Mr. Tanner's unusually active life was first checked by a spinal injury which he suffered in 1923 when he fell from a ladder on his house roof to the roof of the porch. Business worries quickened his decline. He had been fairly inactive since 1929 and bedfast for the last eight months. He died at 7:30 o'clock in the morning.

Funeral services were conducted at the home, 404 Tanner street, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. E. H. Orear, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. At the city cemetery, where Mr. Tanner was buried, Tanner Dye, serving as acting worshipful master of the Masonic lodge, had charge of the burial service.

F. E. Mount, marshal of the Sikeston chapter, of which Mr. Tanner was a member, led Sikeston Masons from the time the lodge convened at 1:30 Wednesday, through the service and procession until the ceremony ended at the cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Dr. H. L. Smith, Harry A. Smith, Porter Kendall, Lyman Bowman, and R. E. Bailey. Honorary pallbearers were W. C. Bowman, George Buchanan of Blodgett, Robert L. Calvin, Ed P. Deal of Charleston; James W. Baker, Sr., Frank Smith, C. L. Blanton, Sr., and C. F. Bruton.

Mr. Tanner, the fifth child of Captain Samuel Tanner and Amelia Evans Tanner, was born at New Hamburg on January 13, 1867. Six years later the family moved to Sikeston, where Mr. Tanner received a grammar school education.

When he was 17 years old, Mr Tanner first began farming for himself. His activities increased and for many years he devoted his time to managing his extensive farm interests. During several terms he served as a member of the Sikeston school board. He was a thirty-second degree Mason

Mr. Tanner is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Ella Sayers, of Charleston, whom he married on December 31, 1890; three sons, Sayers, Ned and Harrison Tanner, all of Sikeston; a daughter, Miss Louis Ellen Tanner, a senior at the Sikeston high school; three brothers, John Louis Tanner of of Sikeston, Frank Tanner of Colton, Calif., and Murray Q. Tanner of Webster Groves, Mo., and two step-sisters, Mrs. Joseph Winchester of Sikeston and Mrs. Robert Lillard of Columbus, Ky., Welsh service.

These residents of other towns attended Mr. Tanner's funeral: Roy L. Furry, Jamie Nags, Mrs. Buzzie Watkins, Miss Christine Phillips, Miss Alma Compass, Frank Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Rodgers, Judge Robert Harrison, and Emil Steck, all of Benton; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dunn of New Madrid; Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Dexter; Miss Mary Brewer and Frank Brewer of Bertrand; Ed Deal, Richard Crenshaw, Charles Huquemburg, Miss Martha Linn, Miss Emily Linn, and Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Cullison, all of Charleston; R. C. Black and Simon Bollinger, both of Oran; Mr. and Mrs. George Buchanan, Roy Green, and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Marshall and son, all of Blodgett; Mrs. Robert Lillard and Mrs. Myra McConnell of Arlington, Ky., Mrs. Jeff Jeffry and her daughter, Willetta Sayers, of Bernie; Mr. and Mrs. David Walters and their son and two daughters of Carbondale, Ill.; and Mr. and Mrs. M. Tandy Captures Three Boys With Stolen Car

Three St. Louis youths who recently stole a 1934 Dodge sedan in University City and have since been touring the south were captured by Trooper John Tandy, Wednesday after a brief chase.

When they admitted the theft to highway patrolmen here, the boys—Orbra Morton, 18, his brother, Frank Morton, 20, and Floyd Ross, 19—were taken to Cape Girardeau county jail at Jackson. They will be prosecuted in the federal court under the Dyer act, which provides punishment for transporting stolen automobiles over state lines. A fourth man, Alfred Davis of Hayti, who was with the three youths at the time of their capture, was released after it was found he was only a hitchhiker having no connection with the case.

As Trooper Tandy drove south on Highway 61 at about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon he met the Dodge sedan, headed north at a place on the pavement opposite the Matthews lane. Becoming suspicious he turned his car around and started north to stop and question the four men.

The St. Louisans desired no interview, however, and pressing the accelerator, the driver sped up the highway. Trooper Tandy followed. As the officer gained on the youths, they turned off the pavement onto the Champion lane, still going very fast. At the Frisco railroad tracks their ride was suddenly halted as the Dodge's knee-action collapsed. Trooper Tandy brought the four to the patrol office.

Although the Dodge did not turn over, the occupants were badly shaken by the abrupt stopping of the car. At the time the automobile was stolen, Frank Morton, it was learned was out on parole from the Algoa reformatory, where he had served a term for forgery. Orbra Morton and Ross have both served jail terms in St. Louis for minor thefts.

The Dodge was stolen either February 10 or 17, and although the boys were completing an extensive southern tour when they were captured, the car had been driven only 3000 miles. The patrol office has reported the theft to St. Louis officers. The name of the owner had not been learned Thursday morning.

Bluff District of Metropolitan Life Ranks First in Area

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. representatves of the Sikeston branch of the Poplar Bluff district will leave this morning for St. Louis, where they will be guests at a formal trohpy dinner and dance being given at the Statler hotel to honor members of the Poplar Bluff district for sales leadership in the southwestern territory during 1934.

The territory is composed of these five states: Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, Oklahoma, and Kansas. For the first time the territory leadership has been gained by a district other than one in which large cities are located.

The leadership award is based for districts on total average sales per man. There are twenty-five field representatives in this district, which comprises territory north to Morley, west to Poplar Bluff, and south to the Arkansas line. Members of the Bluff group ranked twenty-fifth in the United States in competition with 1000 districts throughout the country.

The fact that Southeast Missouri representatives were so successful indicates that prosperity is returning to the district, B. A. Kersting, assistant manager in charge of the Sikeston branch, said Wednesday. The field is still rich with possibilities.

These members of the Sikeston office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company will attend the dinner dance: Mr. Kersting, E. A. Baker, representative in Morehouse; W. C. Campbell, representative in Sikeston and five neighboring towns; W. E. Wimberley, Sikeston and two nearby communities; G. P. Hill, Mississippi county representative; and C. H. Sheata, representative in New Madrid, Lilbourn and Marston. The men will be accompanied by Mrs. Sheata, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Hill and Miss Irene Nash. They expect to return here Monday.

Tests Show New Fire Truck Is Satisfactory

Sikeston's new fire truck, which arrived here at 9 o'clock Monday evening, was found to be in perfect condition after several examinations to test its abilities had been given Tuesday and Wednesday. The testing was done under the supervision of Captain H. C. Ousley, a member of the state fire board of underwriters.

At the drainage ditch east of town, where the most severe examination was given for three hours, the truck pumped 513 galgons of water a minute continuously for two hours at 120-pound pressure. For a half hour, the truck pumped water from the ditch at 200-pound pressure, and for an additional thirty minutes at 250-pound pressure. No record was kept of the water pumped at these pressures.

On the following day, Fire Chief John A. Young said, the truck pumped 638 gallons of water a minute from an eight-inch main at the corner of Malone park. The pressure for this fifteen-minute test was 100 pounds.

The new fire truck is capable of pumping almost one and a half times as many gallons of water a minute as the old machine, which was bought fourteen years ago from the General Fire Truck Corporation of St. Louis, makers of the new vehicle, at a cost of $12,000. The new truck was purchased for $5225 cash.

The new machine is a three-ton model built on a special fire truck chassis. The pumper is equipped with a six-cylinder, 110-horsepower motor with a dual ignition and makes 2600 revolutions a minute while pumping. The truck also possesses a battery magneto and two sets of spark plugs in each cylinder.

Besides the large motor, the truck has a 100-gallon booster tank fitted with a 150-foot booster hose with a shutoff nozzle to be used in fighting small fires, eliminating chemical extinguishers which damaged property because of their acids.

The machine is capable of holding between 1200 and 1500 feet of hose and is equipped with all necessary standard fire fixtures, including axes, crowbars, a pike- poke, a spot light, a bell, a siren, ladders, a large red danger light on the front, a first aid kit, and a tachometer, which shows the speed of the motor while the pump is running.

The fact that city has bought a new fire truck will not only undoubtedly produce a substantial fire insurance rate reduction but will also prevent an increase of 25 per cent which was scheduled to go into effect if a machine were not purchased.

After an extension is built on the present fire truck garage, both machines will be kept on the east side of the city hall. The old truck will be kept for use in fighting small fires.

At the conclusion of the juvenile show, the adult minstrel will be presented. This performance will consist of four parts, including two olios and an after piece, the scene of which will be a cotton field of a southern plantation shortly after sunset.

Sikestonian's Brother Hurt in Truck Accident

J. F. Bagwell of Diehlstadt suffered a broken left shoulder Saturday when the truck he was driving along Highway 55 was forced from the pavement and turned over in a ditch. Mr. Bagwell is a brother of Mrs. Josephin Vieth, mathematics instructor at the Sikeston high school.

The accident happened when an automobile turned into the lane of Mr. Bagwell's truck as the two machines met on the highway. To avoid a collision, Mr. Bagwell swerved his truck left. It plunged into the ditch, turning over on its left side. Mr. Bagwell's shoulder was broken in two places and he sustained minor cuts and bruises. Part of the truck's load of gravel was spilled.

After he was treated in Cape Girardeau, Mr. Bagwell returned to his home, where he is now recovering.

The Boys of Southeast Missouri have lost a true friend, Uncle Joe Sarsar of Sikeston, is no longer with us, but his Spirit of friendliness, brotherhood and kindness will long be with us. Uncle Joe has been one of the leading Scouters of Sikeston and of the Council for many years. He believed that every boy should have the priviege of being a scout— and he made his belief a living fact thru his work with the Lion's Club troop of Sikeston. The many Scouts who have known him, loved him, and respected him will miss him greatly. They will remember his cheery smile, his helpfulness, his talks to them at meetings. To them he will remain the memory of a man who served. He gave leadership in life. This leadership will not die, but will be carried on in the hearts, minds, and lives of the boys of his troop. His wealth will not perish. He has builded in boys. His influence will go on long after his name is forgotten. May the great Scoutmaster of all good scouts be with him till Uncle Joe meets his boys again.—The Semo Scout.

GOVERNMENT'S GOLD OBLIGATIONS STAND BUT CAN'T BE ENFORCED

Washington, Feb. 18—To all holders of United States bonds which promised to pay gold, the Supreme Court in effect said this today:

The Government had no right to stop gold payments on your bond after promising to pay gold, But—

The Government has taken gold out of circulation and there is no way you can force the Treasury to pay you gold. You cannot sue before the Court of Claims. So for the present at least, the only thing left is to accept for your bond its face value in the everyday devalued dollar.

Here is the way the Supreme Court lined up, five to four, on all the gold cases:

Majority: Hughes, Stone, Brandies, Roberts and Cardozo.

Minority: McReynolds, Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler.

Take a Tip from Ruby Ross Goodnow---a House With Built-in Conveniences is a House With a Lived-in Air

While this shingled home has the appearance of a Dutch Colonial, it will be noticed by the floor plan that it is slightly different. At the front are the living rooms and the dining rooms but the central hall is absent. This home contains five rooms and a sun parlor at the end.

Built-in features have come to stay; they have proved to be economical, durable and most convenient.

As the author of the "Honest House", Ruby Ross Goodnow wrote: "Whether your house is still in the embryo; or whether you are making over an old house planned and built by some one else, you can make it very much a home by building in certain things. You may have lived in home for years and still find that there are advantages to built-in features that you cannot afford to disregard.

When the built-in features are well placed and well constructed they become a logical part of the room, increasing the available floor space (a most important point these days) and making the housework much easier. Incinerators (garbage and refuse burners) are an excelent example of a built-in feature that saves time and work. Thanks to the inceneraton unsanitary garbage pail and trash pile no longer have a place in or about the modern home. An incinerator solves the problem of the sanitary elimination of bulky waste just as plumbing has solved the problem of getting rid liquid waste.

The modern incinerator is built in the basement, with a hopper door installed in the chimney accessible to the kitchen. All waste, including garbage, tin cans, wilted flowers, sweepings, newspapers—everything is dropped into this handy little door. It drops to the incinerator in the basement and is later burned up. The noncombustibles such as bottles, tin cans, and the like are flame sterilized and later removed with the ashes. This type of incinerator costs nothing to operate since the only fuel required is the dry combustibles waste deposited.

The incinerator equipped home has no garbage pail in the back yard and the basement is never cluttered up with an ever growing ash pile. The hopper door in the kitchen saves innumerable steps through the day. Another important feature that really should be built in every home is the coal chute. These coal chutes or coal windows are constructed so that are self locking and burglar proof. An additional convenience is a chain for unlocking the window from any part of the basement or from the room above. When daylight is desired in the coal bin, a window with a glass panel protected by a screen is used. This type of window protects the entire opening and side wall when coal is delivered, giving the greatest protection above the window where it is needed the most. Because of this the value of the property is greatly increased, depreciation is lessened and there is a consequent saving of money. Coal chutes designed especially for buildings that have little or no foundation above ground such as low set terraced homes, may be had also.

The old wooden sash and frame for basement windows, is rapidly going out of use, being replaced by a steel cellar sash and frame. There are a number of reasons for their popularity, one of which is that not having wooden jambs, as is the case with the ordinary cellar sash, no replacement is necessary on account of decay.

40 MORE BANKS OPEN WITHOUT RESTRICTIONS

In the first month of 1935 40 banks were opened for unrestricted operation, 11 being national banks and 29 state banks, according to the American Banker. In the month 27 banks were merged and 3 were closed, while 3 went into voluntary liquidation, 2 of which were members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

At the end of 1934, the publication calculates, there were 2,371 fewer banks operating in the United States than at the end of 1932.

KINDRED STRUMS FOR JUDGE AFTER RELEASE

A farewell concert on the guitar was presented for Judge W. H. Carter Saturday by Joe Kindred, who had spent the last five days in jail serving out a fine for being drunk.

Kindred played at Judge Carter's request six pieces which the magistrate heard frequently in his youth. Then he was allowed to leave.

Kindred was arrested a week before as he got off a Southbound Greyhound bus. When he appeared in the police court he told Judge Carter he had quit a job in St. Louis because it was almost necessary for him to drink with his associates. He had bought a ticket for Sikeston, intending to change buses and go on to the home of a brother in Anniston, where he hoped to find work and conquer his liquor habit.

When the bus was not far from St. Louis, he said, several men and women who were drinking discovered that he possessed a guitar, and after they had several times urged him to play for them he consented and joined the party. But as he played, drinks were frequently offered. How could he refuse? At Sikeston he was a drunk man.

Since he possessed only $1 Kindred was placed in the city jail to "lay out" a total fine of $10. One day he worked on the streets; during five more he only stayed in jail. On the seventh he was brought into the police court. Judge Carter and Walter Kendall had decided he would eat more than he earned in labor.

So Kindred played and went his way. Before he left for Anniston he said he would send $4 as soon as he could get it. I don't owe any debts, he said and I don't want to.

COMPANY K INSPECTION TO BE HELD ON MAY 8

Malone, his assistant, both of whom are stationed with the 140th national guard infantry headquarters company in Caruthersville, will come here during a tour of instruction of all Southeast Missouri national guard units. While they are in Sikeston the officers will note the progress made by Company K members in their study of a course of instruction. On May 8, the two officers will return here while they are making an annual tour of inspection of district national guard companies.

Rickenbacker Awarded Trophy

IN recognition of Eddie Rickenbacker's contribution to automotive progress, the U. S. Rubber Co. chose the 25th anniversary of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, of which Rickenbacker is president, to present him with an historic silver, gold and copper plaque. Rickenbacker is at left. Amelia Earhart and Roscoe Turner, noted fliers, look on. W. B. Harding, president of the U. S. Tire Co., at right, in making the presentation, said:

"The automotive industry, as a whole, recognizes the immense value the Speedway races have been in the development of the automobile and the various accessories entering into its make-up. Speed, comfort, safety, and economy of operation have been so well developed by gruelling tests to which cars are exposed in the 500-mile race that today almost every car built combines all the virtues of durability, safety, comfort, and appearance directly as a result.

"We are asking Mr. Rickenbacker to accept this trophy, not for its intrinsic value, but for its linking up with the past and permitting us to memorialize the 25th anniversary of the Speedway, knowing that with him as president of the internationally known organization, further progress and development for the automotive industry is increasingly assured from year to year."

GOV. DROUTH FEED

40 pounds calcium carbonate.

From this you will see the high feed value of this product.

To be a good feed it must have 1st, high analysis proteins, this is supplied by the cottonseed meal, soy bean oil meal and meat meal; 2nd, carbohydrates, this is supplied largely by the molasses and cut fodder, both of which are palatable and very valuable; 3rd, minerals, this is supplied by the calcium carbonate and salt as well as those minerals which are in all the other ingredients.

This combination of feeds has been found to be an exceptionally fine ration for carrying cows, steers, horses, sheep and brood sows through the winter. It need not be supplemented with any other feeds when used for body maintenance. If, however, you are feeding for maximum milk production the addition of some corn is necessary. The same is true when feeding to fatten steers for maximum gains.

To milk cows or other cattle the requirements per day of drouth feed for body maintenance will vary from twelve pounds to a 600 pound cow to 24 pounds per day to a 1100 pound cow.

To sheep, three pounds per day. To horses and mules 8 to 10 pounds. To brood sows, 4 to 5 pounds per day.

A few days' feeding of this feed will soon demonstrate to you its superior value.

FEDERAL FUNDS SOUGHT FOR PARKWAY TO OZARKS

St. Louis, Feb. 18—Federal authorities have been asked by the Missouri State Planning Board to acquire the right of way and furnish construction funds for parkway from St. Louis to the Lake of the Ozarks, Kansas City and the Ozarks of Southwestern Missouri. An estimate of the cost has not been given.

Planning authorities suggested that the submarginal land division of the AAA could buy, with available funds, the right of way not already owned publicly, and that the PWA could provide the State Highway Department with money for a gravel road in the park out of the proposed new public works fund.

Part of the right of way would be in existing national forests and state parks. About 48 square miles would be embraced in the parkway, which would have an average width of 600 feet and extend 32 miles, region, including stream valleys. The route would lie in a scenic lakes, ridges and woods. Billbards and objectionable commercial developments would be forbidden.

The eastern end of the parkway would be at the prospective new bridge for U. S. Highway No 40 over the Missouri River, near Chesterfield. The parkway would pass Babler Memorial Park and follow Fox Creek in the western part of St. Louis County, then would run along Big River to Washington Park, Meramec Park and the new Lake of the Ozarks State Park. From the Lake of the Ozarks one branch would run to Kansas City by way of Clinton and State Highway No. 35 and the other branch would go to Lake Taneycomo and the proposed Table Rock dam and national forest.

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT 279,000 UNITS IN JAN.

Detroit. — Heaviest orders in several years and renewal of the Automobile Code indicate steady production at a high level for at least the next three months, a review of the industry by the Detroit News shows.

More than 1,200,000 passenger cars and trucks will be constructed during that period, it is estimated. These figures include all American plants, but most of these, of course, are located in the Detroit area.

The industry got off to a flying start. During January automobile production totaled around 279,000 passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada, and February production schedules call for the largest output since 1930.

Last year 2,885,000 cars and trucks were produced in the United States and Canada, and the trade expects a sales gain of as high as 25 per cent this year

Dr. J. J. Mackey surprised his Sikeston friends by bringing home an exceptionally fine looking wife that he married at Nashville, Tenn., Sunday, February 10. The bride was Mrs. Charles N. Newman and the marriage performed by the Rev. R. S. Thompson, pastor of the First Christian church in the presence of relatives and friends. On behalf of the good people of Sikeston The Standard welcomes Mrs. Mackey to our city and trusts her life in Sikeston will be a happy one. To Dr. Mackey, we extend congratulations.

If the four billion and a few odd dollars are appropriated by Congress as asked for by the President, then we would like the State Highway Commission to use a good part of that set aside for road building in Missouri to widen and straighten Highway 40 across the state, followed by the concrete paving of Highway 25 at the earliest possible date. The east and west road is the most traveled of any in the State and the interest of all traffic from the South to St. Louis in Highway 25 is that it shortens the distance some 30 miles. The large sum asked for by the President should be expended on permanent monuments of one sort or another so that in after years posterity can point with pride to what they got out of the depression.

Two publication days of The Standard this month have fallen on anniversaries of illustrious citizens and ex-presidents, that of Lincoln on Fberuary 12 and of Washington, February 22, today. Lincoln, an obscure, penniless man, and Washington, an aristocrat, and a man of wealth. Each an outstnding man, a leader of men. Lincoln, reared amid poverty, Washington surrounded by wealth and much sought after. Strong in character the memory of these men will always stand out in history as guiding lights for all to follow.

The home talent play given at the Auditorium Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, brought out good crowds that were pleased with the entertainment. The play was staged by Miss Mary E. Millard and given under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary. Kemper Bruton, Miss Ann Beck and Bob Nicholson took the leading roles and performed like old stagers. The program was rather long but each act had plenty of mirth to keep the audience awake. Good costumes added greatly to the scenes, especially in the square dance, where plenty of action was had. The skit, "She Done Him Wrong", leads some old timers to believe those taking part in the skit had done just that thing, or they would not have known so much about the technique. Miss Millard was a very pleasant little woman, who carries a good voice along with getting the most out of those taking part in the play with the least effort. We don't know the name of the play, but it was all right and had plenty of horse play which was pleasant. The Auxiliary received a little short of one hundred dollars for their part. which they will put to good use to assist those in distress.

And another thing that we are thankful for and that is that The Standrd does not carry a society page!

Some folks who have hardly a change of shirts are exercised about the Supreme Court gold decision. On behalf of the newspapers of Southeast Missouri, who should be greatly interested on account of stocks and bonds held, we'll say the decision never touched us. If you have a dollar it will buy just about as much now as in ordinary times. And if foreign countries don't like it we don't know what they can do about it. They never intend to pay their debts to the United States and likely never intend to buy any more of our stocks and bonds.

Concerning the news item, "Two Juveniles charged with numerous thefts," appearing in the Tuesday morning paper, I would like to state that what the boys got from the Scott County Milling Co., was five sacks of Juanita flour weighing five pounds each and two packages of cake flour the cost of which was not more than $3 at most, and a lantern. The statement that they got $30 worth of goods is absolutely false. The one who reported this news to The Standard evidently has it in for the boys. If the truth is told it is bad enough, without adding to it. We don't blame the editor but just want him to know the truth. Claud Stubblefield did not refuse to sign the bond filed for his release, neither did he state that he wished to go to the reform school. I thought it best to let him go on to Benton in order that he might realize what he was in to and be willing not to repeat his action.—J. D. Stubblefield.

WARDEN CAUTIONS BOYS AGAINST RETAINING FUR BEARERS WITHOUT PERMIT

Because four young men were fined recently for violation of one game law, F. I. Jones of Charleston, game warden in this district, warned Scott and Mississippi county boys yesterday against trapping fur bearing animals and keeping them for pets without first securing $5 permits.

Minimum fines of $50 and costs of $11 were imposed on each of the four men who pled guilty in Judge Joseph W. Myers' court this week to possessing fur bearers without permits. They are Howard Dumey, who lives three miles northeast of Sikeston; Robert Aldridge of Miner Switch; Ed Smoot of Big Opening; and Leonard Overton of Sikeston. Three of the fines were stayed upon payment of costs. Aldridge's case was dismissed on payment of costs.

According to Mr. Jones, this flat district is filled with foxes, who burrow deep caves in crop fields, where they bear their young. The animals are bothersome to farmers, he said, because teams frequently fall into the holes and because in the spring, when litters of foxes are young, the parents raid chicken houses.

Often farm boys capture young foxes, raise them, and keep or give them to residents of cities, where they are considered curiosities. They must secure permits, however, before such procedure is legal.

Game Wardens are always willing to help farmers combat foxes during the time the fur bearing hunting season is closed, and will dispose of the animals if they are notified. Last year Mr. Jones took twenty-six young foxes and one adult to Bonne Terre, Ironton, and Farmington, where they were welcomed by seasoned fox hunters.

Two litters of seven each were taken from Roe Shelby's farm.

On February 11, too, Bill Matthews and Charles French were fined for hunting out of season. French was fined $1 and costs in Judge William S. Smith's court, or a total of $13. Since Matthews was arrested for the second time last week, he was fined $5 and costs, of $17, when he was taken into Judge Myers' court. On February 7, he was fined $1 and costs for hunting out of season.

N. Y. P. S. GROUP TO DISCUSS "CONSECRATED TALENTS"

"Consecrated Talents — How must I Use Them?" will be the general topic of discussion at the Nazarene Young Peoples' Society meeting to be held in the Church of the Nazarene at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening. The scripture verse will be Acts 27:23.

Mrs. Henry Comer is captain of the group which will have charge of the service. Individual members of her group will speak on these phases of the subject: "Consecrated Talents", "Use Them Selfishly", "Without Prejudice," "For the Glory of God," and "As Opportunity Affords."

In the sensational streak of 36 straight victories hung up by the Diehlstadt High girls' team, two Malone sisters have played a big part . . . Last year both Jo and Gaye Malone were on the team . . This year, Gaye has done the scoring . . . Many have asked Coach Earl Crader which of the sisters is the better basketball player . . . to which he answers that he doesn't know . . . Gaye did much of the blocking for Jo to score last year, and this year her average of 34 points per game has about equaled Jo's mark of last year . . . Coach Crader does say, however, that while Jo was a standout at forward only, Gaye is as good center or guard as she is forward . . . and can star in any department of the game.—Cape Missourian.

WHAT MISSOURIANS ARE DOING IN WASHINGTON

By Foust Roper

Washington, Feb. 18 — Baby members of congress soon get House-broken.

Representative Orville Zimmerman, Southeast Missouri's new Democratic congressman, has already taken the lead in securing a national park in Mississippi county.

And although Mr. Zimmerman is not a seasoned legislator—the present is his first elective office—everything is looking bright for the Three States National Park, as the project is known.

'The Forest Primeval'

"The tract consists of 21000 acres of virgin timber," he continued, "and is doubtless the largest piece of similar land in the Mississippi valley. As an example of how wild and untouched it is, there is one oak tree in the tract which is 27 feet in circumference at the base and rises 90 feet to the first limb. There are lakes, bayous and various water courses within its bounds, making it an ideal game preserve."

Timber authorities, in data the representative quoted, have recommended 50 per cent of the timber be removed at once in order to promote the growth of younger trees. It is estimated 80,000,000 feet, conservatively valued at $5 a thousand can be secured at once, netting the government $400,000. The remainder will be available in fifteen to twenty years, as authorities state that under such conditions as prevail in the tract—rich soil and plenty of moisture—trees will mature within one-third to one-half the time needed in hill country.

Cost of acquiring the park will be approximately a million dollars Mr. Zimmerman said. Thus, the project will be self-liquidating over a period of twenty-odd years.

Nelson Represents All

This naturally isn't a cue for every Hooverite to start looking for a postmastership, for jobs from the Nelson quarters will go only to Democrats. But aside from patronage matters, Mr. Nelson is quite impartial.

"I represent the Republicans as well as the Democrats of the second district. One party pays taxes as well as the other, and if I ignore members of the minority group there will be that intolerable condition of 'taxation without representation.'"

Left-Wingers

If being left-handed were to denote leftist views, politically speaking, the Missouri delegation would be far from the rather conservative group it is.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

More About Photo-Greetings

(Left)—"The family is on the march to greet you." That, or something of the sort, serves to complete a greeting like this, made in the easy silhouette manner. (Right) — A little "dime store" reindeer made of glass, a toy Christmas tree and some sugar—that's all this table-top Christmas scene required.

A WEEK or so ago we talked about snapshot Christmas cards, but no one short discussion could possibly cover the subject adequately. A book could be written about it—but not by us. Instead we'll devote today's space to it.

The subjects referred to in our first talk of Christmas cards were deliberately selected from among the more obvious ones—firesides, holly wreaths, winter scenes of the home, and so on. Obvious though they are, any of them is capable of fresh, new interpretation—as individual as your own personality.

And, as you become more familiar with your camera and its capabilities, you'll discover many different approaches to any one idea.

You can use, for example, story-telling silhouettes to give novel twists to otherwise "ordinary" picture ideas. A good silhouette can be made of a young lady hanging up a bit of mistletoe, or of a little boy reaching for a Christmas tree ornament. Silhouettes, as you recall, are made with the help of a sheet, a doorway and a strong light.

You'll find plenty of Christmas materials—little reindeer, gnomes, sleighs, bells and a hundred other seasonable "props" in any "five-and-ten-cent" store. But guard against over-elaborate set-ups. The simpler the better.

Whatever you do, be careful to keep it in key with your own personality. If you are musical, a glimpse of your hands on the piano keyboard plus the score for a Christmas carol on the rack, would be much more appropriate than, say, a shot of your snow-covered home. Or, a pose with your head lifted, singing, if you find you look well that way.

A baby in the family, of course, offers plenty of opportunity for greeting snapshots. If this is the baby's first Christmas, so much the better. A semi-close-up of mother and dad, indoors or out, with the baby perched on dad's shoulders and all three waving cheerfully at the camera, should make a greeting of more than ordinary charm.

Christmas isn't far away now. You'll be wanting to send out your greetings soon. So don't delay!

By the way, don't let good opportunities slip by for taking unusual snow scenes. Maybe you won't use them this year, but there will be other Christmases when they'll come in handy.

For snow scenes in bright sunlight, remember to use a very small lens aperture. Otherwise, the intense brilliance of the scene will give you an over-exposed negative.

JOHN VAN GUILDER

Besides Senator Truman, Representative Clarence Cannon and Reuben T. Wood are also southpaws, which brings the percentage of left-handed members of the Show-Me group to an even 20 per cent.

Whiners

The big fellows can't take it.

Following recent introductions of a bill to disband utility holding companies, agents of that group have started tear-jerking publicity operations.

Sample whimper from one of their broadsides: "We do not believe it is necessary to destroy these companies in order to prevent a recurrence of abuses, many of which have already been corrected, or to correct others which have occurred in individual instances and which the greater number of holding companies recognize should be corrected."

Washington's planners built the capitol facing the east, expecting the city to spread mainly in that direction. It was built up toward the northwest, however, and now most visitors approach it from the rear. . . Senate sessions these days are largely taken up by arguments between the irrepressible Huey Long and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader. Yet in all their clashes, they never refer to or address one another by their names. As provided in senate rules, it is always "the senator from Arkansas" and "the senator from Louisiana" . . . The flag is flown atop the White House only when the President is in town . . . A Missouri member got a phone call the other day from one of the newsmen who calls around regularly. "If any happens," said the reporter, "please hold it for me. I've been taken unexpectedly drunk."

CANALOU SCHOOL NOTES

The Eighth Grade English Class enjoyed a Valentine exchange Thursday. They also learned how during their recitation period Valentine's Day originated and how a custom grows from time to time. After the exchange each pupil was treated to a candy bar.

Thursday afternoon the Junior Mozart Club had a Valentine party at their regular meeting period. Since Valentine's Day and Lincoln Birthday came the same week we decided to combine the two holidays and use both ideas in our program. The first of the period we had a short business meeting. Then the meeting was turned over to the Program Committee and the following program was enjoyed: How Valentine Day Originated— Lou Ella Newman, Lincoln's Birthday—Maggie Shell, Battle Tymn of the Republic, everyone. We then reverted to our childhood days and distributed Valentines to each member of the Club. At the close of the hour delicious home made candy was served.

Friday afternoon the Canalou Community club had as their guest, Mrs. Hunter, from New Madrid. The high school was invited to hear her give an interesting chalk talk.

Monday night, February 11, the Seventh Grade Story Hour Club had a Valentine Party at the school. The room was decorated with hearts and the Valentine motif was carried out in the refreshments. Games and continued stories furnished entertainment. Those present besides the club members were Mrs Oldham, Miss Nickerson, Miss Riley, and Mr. Meyer.

Friday night, February 15, Canalou teams met Anniston's teams on the Anniston court. The Canalou girls were successful, the score being 39 to 9. The Canalou boys were defeated by a score of 33 to 15.

Quite a number of old people have called at The Standard office to inquire the status of the old age pension. So far as we know it is yet in the wind stage with little prospect of it ever becoming a law. In the first place where is the money to come from to pay an old age pension if such a law is passed. The old folks have nothing to contribute to start the fund. The middle class and small business man is now taxed beyond his capacity to pay, the farmer is worse off than nothing and the man of means has his money planted where it cannot be dug up. Congressmen, Senators, members of the Legislature are talking for the folks back home, and that's that.

A Washington Party Menu

SOME people seem to outgrow holidays along with short skirts and hair bows. But we have never believed that holiday celebrations were the exclusive right of the very young. And February is a perfect month to prove our own youth with three grand excuses for a party—St. Valentine's Day and Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. The first two should be fun, but let's make the last the best, and entertain our friends with a very special Washington luncheon or bridge party. The following menu and recipes will make this February party a memorable delight to your guests:

Washington Luncheon
Cherry Juice Cocktail
Ripe Mission Olives Sweet Mixed Pickles
Potato Meat Dumplings with Mushroom Gravy*
Buttered Cauliflower
Corn Bread Sticks Apple Butter
Cheese Balls in Tomato Aspic*
Coffee Star Spangled Cake* Mints

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

Potato Meat Dumplings with Mushroom Gravy (8 servings)—To 8 cups hot mashed cooked potatoes (3 large potatoes) add 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons finely minced onion, 1 egg, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and 1¾ teaspoons salt, blending thoroughly after each addition. Fry 1½ cups finely diced cooked beef, pork, veal or chicken in 2 tablespoons butter until brown, turning often. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Flour palms of hands well and form potato mixture into eight flat cakes about 3½ inches in diameter and ¼ inch thick. As each one is formed, place 2 heaping tablespoons of meat in center of cake, bringing potatoes up around meat to form a round ball. Drop ball into gently boiling water about 2 inches deep, cover tightly and cook for 10 minutes. Lift dumplings from water onto a heated platter, sprinkle with very finely crumbled toast (2 slices toast) and serve with Mushroom Gravy. To make gravy, brown 1½ tablespoons flour in same skillet meat was cooked in, add 1—10 oz. can Cream of Mushroom Soup and cook until it boils.

Cheese Balls in Tomato Aspic (serves 6)—Soak 1½ tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup Tomato Juice for 5 minutes. Over this pour 1 cup of boiling Tomato Juice and stir until dissolved. Add ¾ cup more Tomato Juice, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce. Set aside to cool. Blend 2 packages cream cheese with ¼ cup chopped nut meats and 1 teaspoon Evaporated Horseradish which has been soaked in 1 tablespoon cold water for 5 minutes, and prepare small cheese balls. Put 3 balls into each cold, wet individual mold, fill with the tomato aspic and chill until set. Turn out on watercress and garnish with Mayonnaise.

Star Spangled Cake—Heat ½ cup milk with 2 tablespoons butter to scalding point. Add 1 cup sugar and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Sift 1 cup pastry flour (sifted once before measuring) with 1 teaspoon baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat 4 egg whites until frothy, then add ½ teaspoon cream of tartar and 1 teaspoon Pure Cider Vinegar, and continue beating until whites stand up in a point. Add flour mixture to the milk and sugar and beat thoroughly. Fold in egg whites and ¼ teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon almond extract. Pour into a well greased and floured shallow, oblong pan (10 x 15 inches), or 2 smaller pans. Batter should be about 1/3 inch deep. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Cool. If large pan is used, cut cake in half. Cover the first with a layer of sliced bananas, and one of whipped cream or thick custard. Top with second layer of cake and spread with Current Jelly. Mark cake off into six servings with knife. Hold star stencil closely over center of each square, and sift powdered sugar over star opening with small sifter. Each time, lift stencil and shake off sugar.

To make stencil: Draw and cut out star, size desired (about 1½ inches between points) from center of a piece of cardboard. Have cardboard much larger than the individual squares of cake so the sugar does not go over sides when sifting.

And Now... STRATOSPHERE MAIL!

Hundreds of miles per hour measure the difference in transportation of Uncle Sam's mail over the period of three-quarters of a century. And Wiley Post, the "Modern Magellan", hopes soon to add yet another hundred by coursing the Winnie Mae through the "attic of the atmosphere."

Bartlesville, Okla., February 00.—The old Fort Logan stage coach (lower left) toiled its way through the passes of the Rockies in the gold rush madness of the '70's between Fort Logan and Helena, bearing the ominous legend "No responsibility assumed for safe delivery of passengers, express or gold". Fortunate to average 15 miles per hour on its hazardous itinerary, the old stage put some 600,000 miles on its iron tires before retiring from service, and now rests with other relics of frontier days on the famous Woolaroc ranch of Frank Phillips, oil man and aviation enthusiast, in the Osage hills of Oklahoma.

Many a "whoop and holler" from the days of the old Fort Logan express is the air mail service of today and when Wiley Post takes off in his Winnie Mae soon from Los Angeles, bound for New York City, what aviation experts had predicted for the vague future may be brought into the present—stratosphere mail.

Flying at a speed of approximately 400 miles per hour, the famous Post, who made a piker of Jules Verne by rounding the home planet in eight days, plans to complete his cross-country flight in the stratosphere in something like seven hours, carrying Uncle Sam's mail. Post's flight will be sponsored by Frank Phillips (inset) whose above-mentioned stage coach has for company at his Oklahoma ranch, the epoch-making Woolaroc plane in which Colonel Art Goebel, also backed by Phillips, won the Dole Race to Honolulu in 1927.

Stratosphere air transportation has long been predicted by aviation experts, and Post's success in the Winnie Mae will indeed hasten the day when commercial planes will span the continent with mail and passengers between breakfast and lunch.

MEYER FORMS BAND OF GRADE SCHOOL STUDENTS

During the remainder of the school year, Mr. Meyer will instruct pupils on instruments which they have bought.

Next year, the high school band now under the direction of Reid Jann, will be greatly enlarged by the inclusion of all the fifth grade students now being trained.

The personnel of the high school group will not be diminished after graduation since only a very few members are seniors. More than half of the sixty members now in the band are still in the upper grammar school grades.

The Bulldog girls will go to Diehlstadt Monday to compete with seven other basketball teams in class B of a district tournament. Eight teams of class A are also scheduled to play in the first round.

STATE HISTORICAL NOTES

The first entry of foreigners to into what is now Missouri was in 1541, when De Soto's expedition came up the Mississippi as far as Cape Girardeau. After De Soto had turned back into what is now Arkansas, no white men came to this section of the Mississippi Valley for 117 years, when French traders again visited the territory.

St. Louis was founded by Pierre Laclede in 1765. Twenty-four years later, it was a village of 800 people.

Daniel Boone and George Washington were born in 1732. the former in Pennsylvania and the latter in Virginia. Daniel Morgan Boone estabished a settlement on the north bank of the Missouri river some twenty miles west of St. Charles and a few years later was followed to Missouri by his father and other members of the Boone family. Daniel Boone died at the home of his son, Nathan Boone, in Marthasville in 1820.

At the close of the Spanish period in Missouri's territorial history, Ste. Genevieve, the oldest town in Missouri, was the center of population.

Moses Austin, born in Durham, Connecticut, before the Revolutionary War, became later a manufacturer of pewter in Richmond, Virginia. Learning of the lead mines in Missouri, he came to investigate them in 1796, and from 1798 until 1816 his plant produced 9,460,000 pounds of lead. Tiring of mining operations, Austin obtained a grant of land in Texas and evolved a plan for its colonization. Moses Austin died in 1821 and is buried in Potosi, Mo. His colonization plans were carried on by a son, Stephen Austin. Austin, Texas was named in honor of the family.

In platting the early French establishments in Missouri, the unit of and measure was the arpen, the arpen being about 190 feet. The lots were long, narrow strips those in the St. Louis community field being one arpen wide and about forty arpens long.

Between 1812 and 1820, ten new counties were organized in Missouri territory. In 1820, ten additional counties were created eight of which bordered on the Missouri river.

In the struggling years of the revolution, throughout the hardships and discouragements of the disastrous winter at Valley Forge, beset by political intrigue, Washington never faltered in his task, never lost confidence in the future of the new republic.

CHAPTER I

Spring came that year like a living thing. Flowers leaped from the mellow, odorous earth; birds swirled in the blue clouds, and came to earth, to sing of the heaven they had seen; trees bloomed overnight, from bare skeletons to shimmering lacy loveliness. Scents from a million spring flowers rolled up from the woods, making the air a constant, sweet perfume. Old citizens that year, nodded their heads.

"Never," they said, "never has Russia seen such a Spring." They sniffed the air appreciatively, spat forth their cheap tobacco, and set their gnarled hands to the plow again. Spring to a peasant wasn't Spring to a poet. Spring meant sowing, the hardest kind of work. And Spring meant hoping—hoping that the crops on whose success their lives were built — would be bountiful; hunger, privation, made lives short, they knew.

Spring is an awakening, and in more than one way Russia was awakening. The Czar, under whose despotic heel the greater part of Russia had trembled and been crushed without a sound, was getting old. Some said, he was going mad. And some—good men, who thought not of themselves, but of their children and their children's children—seized upon the Czar's decrepitude as a signal for work among the poor and the dispossessed whose number were legion. Ideas of charity and kindliness, of democracy and righteousness, were being bruited about, always, of course, with an eye cocked to the ever-present agents of the tyrant, against whose word no peasant had a chance. But no man can be forever oppressed. Some day the spirit the tyrant thinks he has broken, rears up, and the tyrant falls, a victim of his own greed.

So it was not surprising, that lovely Spring morning, in a small farm to the south of Moscow that the hope of the slave, who feels the day he will be freed is near, was in the air. You couldn't help but keep your head erect, looking at the sky, and though you worked till your back ached, and a thousand fiends poked daggers in it, goodness and rest was on its way.

The sowers that year, those with the biggest backs and strongest shoulders, sang as they sowed, hurling with husky arms grain into the eager earth. The sowers were women, and women used to working in the fields. And if you could have stood by the side of a rich black field that morning, you would have noticed one of the sowers in particular. The sweep of her dusty body, the clean cut of her head, the grace with which she scooped up the grain from her apron and threw it out, like a cloud, must have caught your attention.

Katusha Maslova had been adopted by a princely house when she was a little girl; she had been brought up, almost a lady—but of course, not quite. She had worked in the fields, "so she would know the taste of labor" her "aunts" said; but hers had not been the strenuous lot of the average peasant girl.

So it was when her "superior", Matron Pavlovna ran up to her in the field that morning, her shrill voice splitting the still air, Katusha did not turn. The old lady had to grab her roughly by the shoulder before she stopped her work.

"What is it?" she asked, impatiently, in a low, melodious voice.

"What are you doing in the fields?" wheezed the old lady.

"I came here to help. There was nothing more to do in the house."

"Oh!" cried Matrona Pavlovna, "you'll catch it! Look at you! What do you think he'll say when he sees you?"

"He? — Who's he?"

"Oh you numbskull! The Prince! Prince Dmitri Ivanovitch! He's on his way here, now."

A look of horror struck Katush's face. "I thought it was tomorrow!" she cried, and dropping her grain, she ran pell-mell, very unlike the lady her "aunts" had wanted her to be, straight into the big house, and 'way up to the attic room that was hers and Matrona Pavlona's. In a fury of excitement, she began to dress, pulling her long brown hair from her shoulders with one hand, and yanking off her loam-covered shoes with another. She heard a carriage arrive downstairs, but she knew she mustn't stop.

Peasants Pay Tribute

On the front porch of the house all the mansion's servants were lined up, each with a simple gift for the young master. One had a cabbage, another a platter of bread and salt, still another a basket of eggs. And when Prince Dmitri Ivanovitch stepped from the carriage, his heart was warmed at his friends who thus came to greet him, in the simple way they had known for centuries, the only way they knew.

From each he took the gift, and smiled. The peasants smiled back, too, so infectious was his boyish charm. His mouth was firm, and his whole face was modeled on a fine scale, but through it poured the good will of one human being to another. He turned to one of his aunts.

"Why," he whispered, "do they give me food? They need it. I don't."

"Shh," she said, "it's a custom. It's always done."

"Hush," his aunt said, sternly, and knowing her young nephew's desire for socialistic reform, and fearing he might deliver himself of some of his sentiment before the servants—and that, dear, oh dear, would never do—she made a brief speech declaring the Prince was "tired, and needed rest" but he, "His Highness' thanks were evident." And half-towing him up the stairs, she deposited him in the hall, just as Katusha, running wildly down the hall to get outside in time to meet the Prince, slipped and fell, and went bumping down the stairs to land, a ball of feminine loveliness at the Prince's feet. His aunt's eyebrows went up at least two inches.

"Katusha!" they cried. "What IS the matter with you?"

Katusha leaped to her feet, opened her mouth and in delightfully naive way, poured out her heart-felt welcome to her master.

"Welcome, Dmitri Ivanovitch. I wish you every happiness. May God grant you happiness—and long life...and...er...er happiness!"

She stopped suddenly, and swallowed, blushed furiously, and then laughed, with all the abandon of a little girl.

The Prince had been staring at her, bewildered, not knowing who this sprite-like creature could be.

"Katusha—" he began, "—but no. Why, my goodness! Why...this is the most startling thing I've ever seen. I mean the way you've changed! Why six years ago—I can't believe my eyes—you were just a little girl with freckles!" You were a freckled cocoon. And now look at you!" he said, triumphantly. "You've changed into a butterfly. A beautiful white and golden butterfly!"

Love Defies Caste

Katusha nodded shyly at his outburst, and then, always the servant, meekly retreated, leaving the astounded Prince alone with his aunts.

He turned to them. "I can't get over her," he cried, "she's a raving beauty! why she's like some kind of dream—"

"—You're not forgetting she's a servant girl, are you, Dmitri?" his aunt cut in, sharply.

The boy shrugged his shoulders. "What difference does that make?"

The aunts looked at each other. "She's not to be treated as an equal," one of them said, severely.

"Why not?" Dmitri asked, wonderingly, "we grew up together."

"That's over now, Dmitri," the aunt said, half-gently. "You're both grown up, now. You're not of the same class—and you never will be. You must treat Katusha merely as a servant, Dmitri, and not as a friend."

"But that's cruel," Dmitri cried. "When Katusha and I were little we said we'd marry each other—that's how much we liked each other. Of course, I don't mean to marry her, but I like her, and she's a person and so am I, and just because she's born a servant and I a Prince doesn't make any difference."

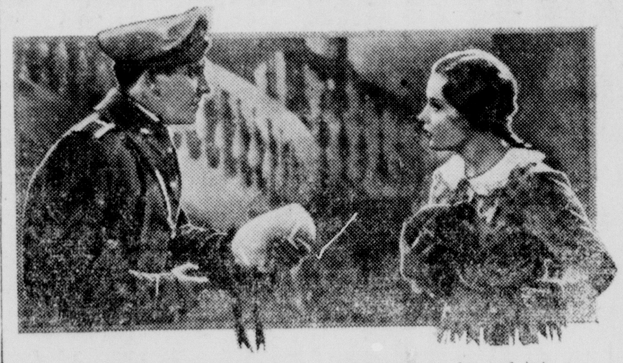

"I forbid you to see her," one of the aunts said, frigidly.

"And I too," offered the other.

The boy looked at his feet, and his aunts stomped off, righteous and prim. When he raised his head, a smile was playing across his mouth. He looked towards the door Katusha had gone through. His smile broadened into a laugh, and he shook his shoulders, and took deep breaths. Spring was in him, and Spring—was in Katusha.

The Prince quickly walked to the stairway leading to his room. Only the harsh sound of the spurs—spurs meant to cut—sounded on marble steps as he climbed them.

PATROL RESPONSIBLE FOR CAPTURE OR 32 CHARGED WITH ROBBERY OF BANKS

Thirty-two persons who were either charged with participating in bank robberies in this district or in nearby states have been arrested by Troop E state highway patrolmen or through troopers' efforts since office was established here in 1931, according to a summary compiled by Sergeant R. R. Reed.

Of this total nineteen have been convicted and given prison terms totaling 303 years one is awaiting trial, two were killed; three were released; two escaped from jail after their arrest; two were acquitted; and three forfeitel bonds.

The first arrests on robbery charges by the Southeast Missouri division of the patrol were made soon after the Security Bank of Fredericktown was robbed on May 25, 1932. Convictions followed quickly. Fred Conway was sentenced to forty years in the state penitentiary and Pete Grego, Joe Modo, Sam Thomas, and Angelo Strazzo were each given ten-year terms.

On July 17, 1933, the Bank of Steele was robbed, bandits getting almost $5000. Of the six persons arrested by patrolmen, only one, Letta Hastings, was released for lack of efidence. T. L. (Lib) Matthews, however, was released when he turned state's evidence. The others, Arvey Hastings, Raymond Michie, Clyde Owens, and Mike Dulin, were all sentenced to ten years in the Missouri prison.

Four men, arrested after a robbery of the Hammond (Mo.) Bank were placed in jail to await trial. One of them, Walter Hartley, escaped but was later killed by troopers. Of the remaining three, Jack Dillon was given forty years; Sherman Hodges, ten years; and Orval Hosea, forty years.

These men were also arrested by Troop E highway patrolmen:

Claude Dickerson, escaped jail after he had been arrested and positively identified as a participant in three different bank robberies. He is still a fugitive. This winter, his companion, Gene Goodman, who broke jail with him, was kiled in a shooting scrape at an East St. Louis, Ill., tavern. Edward Gallop was arrested at Mountain Grove and released to Oklahoma officers.

James Gardner was killed by Troop D patrolmen after he had been arrested and made bond. Otho Hartley has been a fugitive since he escaped from jail.

Freeman Miller was acquitted after a trial and Gerald Parks was released after his arrest by troopers. Frank Walker made bonds of $5000 each on two bank robberies, later forfeiting them. He is still at large.

Edgar Whiteaker was released to Okahoma officers after his arrest, and is now awaiting trial. Robert Trolinger, one of the most desperate of criminals to enter this district in recent years, was given a ten-year penitentiary term after he was turned over to Nebraska officers, while Frank Layton was given five years and Geo. Ward ten years after their release to Oklahoma officers.

Supplying valuable information, troopers were largely responsible for the arrest and conviction, in most cases, of these persons:

Remus and Otho (Bish) Perkins, who disappeared while they were temporarily free on bond, and are now being widely hunted to answer many bank robbery charges; Claude Garner and Otis Stanfield, convicted and sentenced at Nashville, Tenn., to twenty years each in prison; Aaron Richardson, John Richardson, and Lester Sheals. Aaron Richardson was convicted and given a seven-year term in Arkansas, while Sheals was sentenced to serve twenty-one years, both for robbery of the Cooter Bank. John Richardson was acquitted.

BLODGETT BASKETBALL SEASON CLOSED

On February 12 the Blodgett boys and girls completed the season's schedule in games here with Anniston. The boys lost to Anniston by a score of 23 to 21, but only in the final 20 seconds of play. The girls defeated Anniston girls 53 to 6, two Blodgett teams splitting the playing time. The girls have won 5 out of 7 league games played, and lost the two by very small margins.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of my beloved friend, Mrs. Hanna Storey, who departed this life four years ago today, February 22, 1932.

You bid no one a last farewell,
You said goodbye to none
Your loving heart had ceased to beat,
Before we knew you were gone.
Your big smile and kind ways,
Are pleasant to recall;
More and more each day I miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within my heart concealed;
Some day I hope to meet her,
Some day, I know not when
To Clasp her hand in the better land
Never to part again.
Sadly missed by a friend.
Gladys.

ASK THAT MAN BE SENT FROM NEW MEXICO TO FACE SCOTT CO. CHARGE

Benton, February 18—Prosecuting Attorney W. P. Wilkerson said he had prepared extradition papers asking the return from Clovis, N. M., of Tom Tate, 29, to face trial in connection with the $90 robbery of a railway station at Illmo, in 1933.

Sheriff Bob Thomas of Clovis, reported Tate surrendered there Saturday, asserting he committed the robbery and that friends of his suspected in the case were innocent. The cash and two suits of clothing were taken in the robbery.

Sheriff Thomas said Tate told him he gave himself up upon the plea of William and Joe Clark, brothers. Prosecutor Wilkerson said it had not been determined what effect Tate's surrender would have upon the investigation of others in the case.

Sheriff Joe Anderson at Benton said no charges had been filed against the Clarks.

D. E. BLANTON ENDORSED FOR COMMITTEEMAN OF STATE DEMOCRATIC CLUB

David E. Blanton was endorsed for the office of state committeeman of the Missouri Young Democrats organization by members of the Young Democrats club of the tenth congressional district who convened in Poplar Bluff Tuesday for their first general convention. Mr. Blanton was first recommended by a committee whose report was later approved by district delegates. Lynn Ancell and Leo J. Pfefferkorn were members of the committee of four. Gordon Hazelrigg of Poplar Bluff, president of the Butler County Young Democrats club, was endorsed for "a state office."

Seven Sikeston Democrats attended the convention, at which Roosevelt policies were heartily approved, recognition of Southeast Missouri in the state organization was demanded, and delegates were urged to attend the state convention to be held today and tomorrow at the Statler hotel in St. Louis. Hubert Boyer will be one of Scott county's representatives at these sessions. It is possible that Lynn Ancell will attend. David Blanton plans to be present at the Saturday meetings.

Sikestonians attending the district sessions were Lynn Ancell, Harold Ancell, Robert Dempster, A. C. Barrett, Hubert Boyer, E. G. Buchanan and David Blanton.

Mr. Barrett is secretary of the temporary district organization; E. M. Munger fo Chaffee, director of organization and Mr. Hazelrigg of Poplar Bluff, vice-director These officers were chosen at a district meeting held here January 29.

Speakers at the Poplar Bluff meeting included Dwight H. Brown, secretary of state; Mr. Munger; Mr. Hazelrigg; Judge Robert I. Cope of the circuit court; John Dalton, marshal of the Supreme Court of Missouri; David Blanton; Mrs. Lena Dixon of Poplar Bluff; Mrs. O. E. Rigdon of Chaffee; Roger G. Taylor of Licking, Mo.; Earl Johnson, secretary to Dwight Brown; Mrs. Mary Hughes of Naylor; and former state Senator Russell L. Dearmont.

At a banquet held in the Ducker hotel Tuesday evening, congratulatory telegrams from state officials on the success of young Democrats in this district were read. These wires were sent by Governor Guy B. Park, State Auditor Forrest Smith, Attorney General Roy McKittrick, and Charles M. Hay of St. Louis.

TWO YOUTHS SENTENCED, FINED FOR MILL THEFTS

Chester Docking and Cecil Powers were each sentenced to twelve months in jail and fined court costs when they pled guilty in Judge Joseph W. Myers' court Thursday morning to stealing $50 worth of grain and flour from the Scott County Milling Company on January 31. The two jail sentences were stayed on good behavior. Docking, a juvenile, was granted permission by Porsecuting Attorney W. P. Wilkerson to waive his juvenile standing and be fined and sentenced in the justice of the peace court. Ordinarily juveniles are given hearings in the juvenile court at Benton.

A peace disturbance charge against George Taylor, a negro, was dismissed in Judge Myers' court yesterday morning. Recently, D. H. Page was awarded judgments of $136.46 against William Ramsey and of $12.02 against Clarence Couch on grocery bills.

OIL PLANT CONTRACT ALMOST SATISFACTORY

A letter received by City Attorney Robert Dempster this week from W. D. Lowe, of Newton, Miss., an official of the Mississippi Cotton Seed Products Company, indicated that the city's contract with the concern will be signed soon. Only a few minor changes in the agreement mailed last week were requested by Mr. Lowe. Since other arrangements necessary for the establishment here of a branch cotton oil plant are being completed, work on the mill will probably be started soon.

Dorman to be Tried at Cape

That Henry J. Dorman of Jackson, accused of attempting to exhort $10,000 from C. D. Matthews, Jr., president of the Bank of Sikeston, will be tried in the Cape Girardeau federal court was made certain Wednesday when the formal indictment against him was transferred to the Cape Girardeau court from the federal court in St. Louis. Dorman is now in jail in default of a $25,000 bond. The next court term will be in April.

The regular meeting of the Woman's club will be held at the home of Mrs. E. C. Matthews Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 26.

Mrs. Orear will have charge of the program and all members are urged to attend.

NEW MADRID COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

The annual school meetin falls this year on Tuesday, April 2, and in rural schools a mass meeting is held beginning at 2 o'clock p. m. In consolidated districts the election begins at 7 o'clock a. m. and closes at 6 o'clock p. m. At the annual meeting this year the voters will elect directors for regular terms, elect directors to fill any vacancies, vote for length of school term in excess of 8 month, decide on any proposed change in boundaries, determine the levy for school purposes and building fund, and designate their choice, by ballot, for a person to fill the office of county superintendent of schools.

In some school districts the ladies have not been taking any part in the annual school meeting and this seems to be a mistake, for the mothers are so close to the children and so vitally concerned in their welfare it seems that they ought to be extremely active in school affairs, even those who take no interest in political affairs. School matters should be held sacred and controlled by the highest motives possessed by human beings, and a mother's love will do that.

The County Boys' Basketball Tournament is being played at Matthews on the nights of February 20, 21, 21, and 23 beginning at 7:00, 6:00, 7:30 and 7:30 p. m. respectively. On Wednesday night six teams will play—New Madrid vs. Canalou, Morehouse vs. Risco; and Marston vs. Gideon. On Thursday night we have Parma vs. Portageville; Lilbourn vs. Matthews, winner of game 3 vs. Kewanee, and winner of game 1 vs. winner of game 2. On Friday night will be the semi- finals and on Saturday night the consolation and championship games. Three cups will be awarded. Matthews has one of the most spacious gyms in the county and we expect it to be filled with fans from all parts of the county.

The State Athletic Association has arranged for a Regional Boys' Basketball Tournament at Portageville on February 28 and March 1 and 2, which is one of the sixteen in the state and includes three counties—New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin. Teams participating in this event are Arbyrd, Caruthersville, Cardwell, Clarkton, Deering, Gideon, Hayti, Holcomb, Kewanee, Lilbourn, Malden, Marston, Matthews, Parma, Portageville, Risco, and Senath. This will be a gala event.

The railroad and utility tax was apportioned to the various school districts on February 4 and the county treasurer has credited the different funds of the rural districts with the specified amounts. Also checks have been sent to the treasurers of the high school districts for the total amount due them. We are also sending to each secretary of high school districts a proper distribution of these funds.

In making requisition for state aid this spring, secretaries should be sure to report only the railroad taxes which belong to teachers and incidentals, for if the money belonging to sinking interest and building funds is included, the state aid opportionment will be reduced that much. And we want every dollar of state aid that is due us. Last year the utility taxes to schools totaled $25,259.86 as against $20,996.69 for this year. The extra amount last year was due to a back payment.

F. D. LAIR BUYS STRUCTURE HOUSING FURNITURE FIRM

The Lair Furniture Company on west Center Street will soon be housed in the "best equipped exclusive furniture building between St. Louis and Memphis," secured at a lower rental cost for quantity of space than any other in this district, F. D. Lair said this week.

On Wednesday, Mr. Lair bought the building he has occupied three and a half years from the Great Southern Savings & Loan Association of Springfield, Mo., Negotiations for the purchase were started before February 1, when Mr. Lair's lease on the structure expired. He was aided in the deal by Max P. Shelton, vice-president of the association, and Jess G. Harmon, general manager, both of St. Louis.

In about thirty days, remodeling work will be started on the furniture company building. One center entrance will be constructed in a modernized store front, to be fitted with a permanent, wooden awning suspended from heavy chains. Interior walls will be plastered and the ceiling finished.

Part of the second floor, which is now used for furniture displays, will be sealed and finished so that it may be converted into a more attractive exhibition room and may be easily heated in winter. The third floor will still be used for storage purposes.

With a total of 29,000 square feet of floor space, Mr. Lair will make monthly payments lower than rentals of other stores as large. Although it was not originally constructed primarily for a furniture company, the building which Mr. Lair occupies is particularly well suited for his business. The large first floor enables him to display numerous varieties of all kinds of furniture. Other models are kept on the second floor, which customers may reach by riding on a huge freight elevator capable of holding the largest piece of furniture. On the third floor additional stock is stored, and in the rear of the first story is a large covered loading space, where furniture may be unpacked even during inclement weather.

Four years ago, Mr. Lair opened a Sikeston store on Front Street after operating a furniture company in Charleston for many years. Because of immediate patronage of furniture buyers, he was required to move soon to larger quarters.

SIKESTON STANDARD

Southeast Missouri's Leading Semi-Weekly

VOLUME 23 — SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI FRIDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 22, 1935 — NUMBER 42

THE EDITOR SAYS—

Sunday afternoon we listened to a beautiful musical program that was full of harmony and tenderness. We leaned back in a rocker, closed our eyes and dreamed of pleasant things, of the new life to come, of things we would like to do to make others happy. We were rudely aroused from our dream by a change to a hillbilly band blaring some barn-storming fiddling that was classed as entertainment. Music on the lute will charm the deadly cobra, but we have an idea that a sudden change to hill-billy stuff, he would strike quick and would be justified.

Several years ago a tall barber of Sikeston who had a blond wife who was supposed to be hell on wheels, threw a picnic party for a number of men friends down about the Wolf Hole. This wife heard about it and hurried to the picnic ground just in time to see a case of Old Crow opened for the edification of the boys. She rushed out of the bushes and took possession of the booze before her husband could interfere, captured the case and one by one the long necked bottles were thrown into the ditch. The following year one of the boys hearing the ditch was to be dredged, got permission to be aboard the machine while this section of the ditch was being dredged and promised an even division with the dredge operator for all Old Crow turned up. Not a single bottle was found and this story just came to light Tuesday of this week.

The Missouri Historical Review of February contains an advertisement of Spring River Academy in Lawrence County, Mo., copied from the Springfield Advertiser of May 24, 1845, which, among other things, says: "Boarding will be furnished in private families in the vicinity, including washing, candles, etc., at the following rates, viz: Young ladies and gentlemen, per week, $1.00. chidren, 75c."

The first pot gutted Uncle Sam we have ever had the pleasure to see in either person or picture was shown in the home talent play Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium. In order not to get personal we shall call no names.

* * *

Excellent work has been accomplished in road building during the life of the State Highway Commission which was authorized as a nonpartisan commission. To be authorized and to be run on a nonpartisan basis are two different things. It was born during a Republican Administration, officers selected by a Republican administration and nearly every one of the best paying postions held by Republicans, and nearly every one is still held by Republicans. No criticism of work in road building, and no charge of graft that was a fact. The man who is ashamed of his politics is not deserving of a state job and why any member would be against the demand to probe the political standing of road employes would be strange. All adminstrative officials should be in sympathy with whatever political party is in power and the working force on a 50-50 basis. Or this is what one voter and one small tax payer thinks about it.

* * *

The Legislature of the state of Missouri has been warned from Washington that no more relief will be given the state unless the state does her part. The only way to meet this demand for aid is to pass a 2-cent sales tax and do it now. It may not please any one but it will raise the money, and at once. Real estate and personal property cannot stand all the tax for the support of state institutions, the schools and relief.

* * *

We haven't learned whether the "sex-lover" that we heard of in town was male or female, anyway, it is a new name for the same old thing.

* * *

The city has an unusual number of bird dogs of one breed or another that should soon be penned up for the summer. If they are valuable they should be taken care of. In town they are a danger and a nuisiance. They run over gardens and flower beds and have been the cause of many people losing their religion. This is time for our city officials to force dog owners to keep their dogs up just like feathered chickens are supposed to be kept up. Bird dogs always have the runarounds.

* * *

We are in receipt of a communication from R. S. Coleman, informing us that The Standard was wrong when it said in Tuesday edition that he had resigned as distributor of relief at the City Hall to old, feeble and sick. He says he was fired because he wanted to give out supplies to all who needed food, fuel and medicine. We don't know anything about the real reason, but we do know his communication was too personal toward those responsible for orders for relief. We are satsfied in our own mind that all relief headquarters have been rightfully imposed on by many who did not really need public relief and probably some who were entitled to it didn't get it.

Charles Tanner Dies After Long Illness

Charles Samuel Tanner, a native of Scott County and a member of a prominent pioneer family of Southeast Missouri, died at his home here Tuesday morning after a long illness.

Death was caused by a complication of diseases, including hardening of the arteries and partial paralysis.

Mr. Tanner's unusually active life was first checked by a spinal injury which he suffered in 1923 when he fell from a ladder on his house roof to the roof of the porch. Business worries quickened his decline. He had been fairly inactive since 1929 and bedfast for the last eight months. He died at 7:30 o'clock in the morning.

Funeral services were conducted at the home, 404 Tanner street, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. E. H. Orear, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. At the city cemetery, where Mr. Tanner was buried, Tanner Dye, serving as acting worshipful master of the Masonic lodge, had charge of the burial service.

F. E. Mount, marshal of the Sikeston chapter, of which Mr. Tanner was a member, led Sikeston Masons from the time the lodge convened at 1:30 Wednesday, through the service and procession until the ceremony ended at the cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Dr. H. L. Smith, Harry A. Smith, Porter Kendall, Lyman Bowman, and R. E. Bailey. Honorary pallbearers were W. C. Bowman, George Buchanan of Blodgett, Robert L. Calvin, Ed P. Deal of Charleston; James W. Baker, Sr., Frank Smith, C. L. Blanton, Sr., and C. F. Bruton.

Mr. Tanner, the fifth child of Captain Samuel Tanner and Amelia Evans Tanner, was born at New Hamburg on January 13, 1867. Six years later the family moved to Sikeston, where Mr. Tanner received a grammar school education.

When he was 17 years old, Mr Tanner first began farming for himself. His activities increased and for many years he devoted his time to managing his extensive farm interests. During several terms he served as a member of the Sikeston school board. He was a thirty-second degree Mason

Mr. Tanner is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Ella Sayers, of Charleston, whom he married on December 31, 1890; three sons, Sayers, Ned and Harrison Tanner, all of Sikeston; a daughter, Miss Louis Ellen Tanner, a senior at the Sikeston high school; three brothers, John Louis Tanner of of Sikeston, Frank Tanner of Colton, Calif., and Murray Q. Tandy Captures Three Boys With Stolen Car

Three St. Louis youths who recently stole a 1934 Dodge sedan in University City and have since been touring the south were captured by Trooper John Tandy, Wednesday after a brief chase.

When they admitted the theft to highway patrolmen here, the boys—Orbra Morton, 18, his brother, Frank Morton, 20, and Floyd Ross, 19—were taken to Cape Girardeau county jail at Jackson. They will be prosecuted in the federal court under the Dyer act, which provides punishment for transporting stolen automobiles over state lines. A fourth man, Alfred Davis of Hayti, who was with the three youths at the time of their capture, was released after it was found he was only a hitchhiker having no connection with the case.

As Trooper Tandy drove south on Highway 61 at about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon he met the Dodge sedan, headed north at a place on the pavement opposite the Matthews lane. Becoming suspicious he turned his car around and started north to stop and question the four men.

The St. Louisans desired no interview, however, and pressing the accelerator, the driver sped up the highway. Trooper Tandy followed. As the officer gained on the youths, they turned off the pavement onto the Champion lane, still going very fast. At the Frisco railroad tracks their ride was suddenly halted as the Dodge's knee-action collapsed. Trooper Tandy brought the four to the patrol office.

Although the Dodge did not turn over, the occupants were badly shaken by the abrupt stopping of the car. At the time the automobile was stolen, Frank Morton, it was learned was out on parole from the Algoa reformatory, where he had served a term for forgery. Orbra Morton and Ross have both served jail terms in St. Louis for minor thefts.

The Dodge was stolen either February 10 or 17, and although the boys were completing an extensive southern tour when they were captured, the car had been driven only 3000 miles. The patrol office has reported the theft to St. Louis officers. The name of the owner had not been learned Thursday morning.

Bluff District of Metropolitan Life Ranks First in Area

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. representatves of the Sikeston branch of the Poplar Bluff district will leave this morning for St. Louis, where they will be guests at a formal trohpy dinner and dance being given at the Statler hotel to honor members of the Poplar Bluff district for sales leadership in the southwestern territory during 1934.

The territory is composed of these five states: Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, Oklahoma, and Kansas. For the first time the territory leadership has been gained by a district other than one in which large cities are located.

The leadership award is based for districts on total average sales per man. There are twenty-five field representatives in this district, which comprises territory north to Morley, west to Poplar Bluff, and south to the Arkansas line. Members of the Bluff group ranked twenty-fifth in the United States in competition with 1000 districts throughout the country.

The fact that Southeast Missouri representatives were so successful indicates that prosperity is returning to the district, B. A. Kersting, assistant manager in charge of the Sikeston branch, said Wednesday. The field is still rich with possibilities.

These members of the Sikeston office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company will attend the dinner dance: Mr. Kersting, E. A. Baker, representative in Morehouse; W. C. Campbell, representative in Sikeston and five neighboring towns; W. E. Wimberley, Sikeston and two nearby communities; G. P. Hill, Mississippi county representative; and C. H. Sheata, representative in New Madrid, Lilbourn and Marston. The men will be accompanied by Mrs. Sheata, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Hill and Miss Irene Nash. They expect to return here Monday.

Tests Show New Fire Truck Is Satisfactory

Sikeston's new fire truck, which arrived here at 9 o'clock Monday evening, was found to be in perfect condition after several examinations to test its abilities had been given Tuesday and Wednesday. The testing was done under the supervision of Captain H. C. Ousley, a member of the state fire board of underwriters.

At the drainage ditch east of town, where the most severe examination was given for three hours, the truck pumped 513 galgons of water a minute continuously for two hours at 120-pound pressure. For a half hour, the truck pumped water from the ditch at 200-pound pressure, and for an additional thirty minutes at 250-pound pressure. No record was kept of the water pumped at these pressures.

On the following day, Fire Chief John A. Young said, the truck pumped 638 gallons of water a minute from an eight-inch main at the corner of Malone park. The pressure for this fifteen-minute test was 100 pounds.

The new fire truck is capable of pumping almost one and a half times as many gallons of water a minute as the old machine, which was bought fourteen years ago from the General Fire Truck Corporation of St. Louis, makers of the new vehicle, at a cost of $12,000. The new truck was purchased for $5225 cash.

The new machine is a three-ton model built on a special fire truck chassis. The pumper is equipped with a six-cylinder, 110-horsepower motor with a dual ignition and makes 2600 revolutions a minute while pumping. The truck also possesses a battery magneto and two sets of spark plugs in each cylinder.

Besides the large motor, the truck has a 100-gallon booster tank fitted with a 150-foot booster hose with a shutoff nozzle to be used in fighting small fires, eliminating chemical extinguishers which damaged property because of their acids.

The machine is capable of holding between 1200 and 1500 feet of hose and is equipped with all necessary standard fire fixtures, including axes, crowbars, a pike- poke, a spot light, a bell, a siren, ladders, a large red danger light on the front, a first aid kit, and a tachometer, which shows the speed of the motor while the pump is running.

The fact that city has bought a new fire truck will not only undoubtedly produce a substantial fire insurance rate reduction but will also prevent an increase of 25 per cent which was scheduled to go into effect if a machine were not purchased.

After an extension is built on the present fire truck garage, both machines will be kept on the east side of the city hall. The old truck will be kept for use in fighting small fires.

At the conclusion of the juvenile show, the adult minstrel will be presented. This performance will consist of four parts, including two olios and an after piece, the scene of which will be a cotton field of a southern plantation shortly after sunset.

Sikestonian's Brother Hurt in Truck Accident

J. F. Bagwell of Diehlstadt suffered a broken left shoulder Saturday when the truck he was driving along Highway 55 was forced from the pavement and turned over in a ditch. Mr. Bagwell is a brother of Mrs. Josephin Vieth, mathematics instructor at the Sikeston high school.

The accident happened when an automobile turned into the lane of Mr. Bagwell's truck as the two machines met on the highway. To avoid a collision, Mr. Bagwell swerved his truck left. It plunged into the ditch, turning over on its left side. Mr. Bagwell's shoulder was broken in two places and he sustained minor cuts and bruises. Part of the truck's load of gravel was spilled.

After he was treated in Cape Girardeau, Mr. Bagwell returned to his home, where he is now recovering.

The Boys of Southeast Missouri have lost a true friend. Uncle Joe Sarsar of Sikeston, is no longer with us, but his Spirit of friendliness, brotherhood and kindness will long be with us. Uncle Joe has been one of the leading Scouters of Sikeston and of the Council for many years. He believed that every boy should have the priviege of being a scout— and he made his belief a living fact thru his work with the Lion's Club troop of Sikeston. The many Scouts who have known him, loved him, and respected him will miss him greatly. They will remember his cheery smile, his helpfulness, his talks to them at meetings. To them he will remain the memory of a man who served. He gave leadership in life. This leadership will not die, but will be carried on in the hearts, minds, and lives of the boys of his troop. His wealth will not perish. He has builded in boys. His influence will go on long after his name is forgotten. May the great Scoutmaster of all good scouts be with him till Uncle Joe meets his boys again.—The Semo Scout.

GOVERNMENT'S GOLD OBLIGATIONS STAND BUT CAN'T BE ENFORCED

Washington, Feb. 18—To all holders of United States bonds which promised to pay gold, the Supreme Court in effect said this today:

The Government had no right to stop gold payments on your bond after promising to pay gold, But—

The Government has taken gold out of circulation and there is no way you can force the Treasury to pay you gold. You cannot sue before the Court of Claims. So for the present at least, the only thing left is to accept for your bond its face value in the everyday devalued dollar.

Here is the way the Supreme Court lined up, five to four, on all the gold cases:

Majority: Hughes, Stone, Brandies, Roberts and Cardozo.

Minority: McReynolds, Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler.

Take a Tip from Ruby Ross Goodnow---a House With Built-in Conveniences is a House With a Lived-in Air

While this shingled home has the appearance of a Dutch Colonial, it will be noticed by the floor plan that it is slightly different. At the front are the living rooms and the dining rooms but the central hall is absent. This home contains five rooms and a sun parlor at the end.

Built-in features have come to stay; they have proved to be economical, durable and most convenient.

As the author of the "Honest House", Ruby Ross Goodnow wrote: "Whether your house is still in the embryo; or whether you are making over an old house planned and built by some one else, you can make it very much a home by building in certain things. You may have lived in home for years and still find that there are advantages to built-in features that you cannot afford to disregard.

When the built-in features are well placed and well constructed they become a logical part of the room, increasing the available floor space (a most important point these days) and making the housework much easier. Incinerators (garbage and refuse burners) are an excelent example of a built-in feature that saves time and work. Thanks to the inceneraton unsanitary garbage pail and trash pile no longer have a place in or about the modern home. An incinerator solves the problem of the sanitary elimination of bulky waste just as plumbing has solved the problem of getting rid liquid waste.

The modern incinerator is built in the basement, with a hopper door installed in the chimney accessible to the kitchen. All waste, including garbage, tin cans, wilted flowers, sweepings, newspapers—everything is dropped into this handy little door. It drops to the incinerator in the basement and is later burned up. The noncombustibles such as bottles, tin cans, and the like are flame sterilized and later removed with the ashes. This type of incinerator costs nothing to operate since the only fuel required is the dry combustibles waste deposited.

The incinerator equipped home has no garbage pail in the back yard and the basement is never cluttered up with an ever growing ash pile. The hopper door in the kitchen saves innumerable steps through the day. Another important feature that really should be built in every home is the coal chute. These coal chutes or coal windows are constructed so that are self locking and burglar proof. An additional convenience is a chain for unlocking the window from any part of the basement or from the room above. When daylight is desired in the coal bin, a window with a glass panel protected by a screen is used. This type of window protects the entire opening and side wall when coal is delivered, giving the greatest protection above the window where it is needed the most. Because of this the value of the property is greatly increased, depreciation is lessened and there is a consequent saving of money. Coal chutes designed especially for buildings that have little or no foundation above ground such as low set terraced homes, may be had also.

The old wooden sash and frame for basement windows, is rapidly going out of use, being replaced by a steel cellar sash and frame. There are a number of reasons for their popularity, one of which is that not having wooden jambs, as is the case with the ordinary cellar sash, no replacement is necessary on account of decay.

40 MORE BANKS OPEN WITHOUT RESTRICTIONS

In the first month of 1935 40 banks were opened for unrestricted operation, 11 being national banks and 29 state banks, according to the American Banker. In the month 27 banks were merged and 3 were closed, while 3 went into voluntary liquidation, 2 of which were members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

At the end of 1934, the publication calculates, there were 2,371 fewer banks operating in the United States than at the end of 1932.

KINDRED STRUMS FOR JUDGE AFTER RELEASE

A farewell concert on the guitar was presented for Judge W. H. Carter Saturday by Joe Kindred, who had spent the last five days in jail serving out a fine for being drunk.

Kindred played at Judge Carter's request six pieces which the magistrate heard frequently in his youth. Then he was allowed to leave.

Kindred was arrested a week before as he got off a Southbound Greyhound bus. When he appeared in the police court he told Judge Carter he had quit a job in St. Louis because it was almost necessary for him to drink with his associates. He had bought a ticket for Sikeston, intending to change buses and go on to the home of a brother in Anniston, where he hoped to find work and conquer his liquor habit.

When the bus was not far from St. Louis, he said, several men and women who were drinking discovered that he possessed a guitar, and after they had several times urged him to play for them he consented and joined the party. But as he played, drinks were frequently offered. How could he refuse? At Sikeston he was a drunk man.

Since he possessed only $1 Kindred was placed in the city jail to "lay out" a total fine of $10. One day he worked on the streets; during five more he only stayed in jail. On the seventh he was brought into the police court. Judge Carter and Walter Kendall had decided he would eat more than he earned in labor.

So Kindred played and went his way. Before he left for Anniston he said he would send $4 as soon as he could get it. I don't owe any debts, he said and I don't want to.

COMPANY K INSPECTION TO BE HELD ON MAY 8

On February 27, Major Clinton Rush, senior instructor and Captain Earle H. Malone, his assistant, both of whom are stationed with the 140th national guard infantry headquarters company in Caruthersville, will come here during a tour of instruction of all Southeast Missouri national guard units. While they are in Sikeston the officers will note the progress made by Company K members in their study of a course of instruction. On May 8, the two officers will return here while they are making an annual tour of inspection of district national guard companies.

Rickenbacker Awarded Trophy

IN recognition of Eddie Rickenbacker's contribution to automotive progress, the U. S. Rubber Co. chose the 25th anniversary of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, of which Rickenbacker is president, to present him with an historic silver, gold and copper plaque. Rickenbacker is at left. Amelia Earhart and Roscoe Turner, noted fliers, look on. W. B. Harding, president of the U. S. Tire Co., at right, in making the presentation, said:

"The automotive industry, as a whole, recognizes the immense value the Speedway races have been in the development of the automobile and the various accessories entering into its make-up. Speed, comfort, safety, and economy of operation have been so well developed by gruelling tests to which cars are exposed in the 500-mile race that today almost every car built combines all the virtues of durability, safety, comfort, and appearance directly as a result.

"We are asking Mr. Rickenbacker to accept this trophy, not for its intrinsic value, but for its linking up with the past and permitting us to memorialize the 25th anniversary of the Speedway, knowing that with him as president of the internationally known organization, further progress and development for the automotive industry is increasingly assured from year to year."

GOV. DROUTH FEED

1000 pounds fine cut, high quality corn fodder.

800 pounds blackstrap molasses.

40 pounds calcium carbonate.

20 pounds salt.

From this you will see the high feed value of this product.

To be a good feed it must have 1st, high analysis proteins, this is supplied by the cottonseed meal, soy bean oil meal and meat meal; 2nd, carbohydrates, this is supplied largely by the molasses and cut fodder, both of which are palatable and very valuable; 3rd, minerals, this is supplied by the calcium carbonate and salt as well as those minerals which are in all the other ingredients.

This combination of feeds has been found to be an exceptionally fine ration for carrying cows, steers, horses, sheep and brood sows through the winter. It need not be supplemented with any other feeds when used for body maintenance. If, however, you are feeding for maximum milk production the addition of some corn is necessary. The same is true when feeding to fatten steers for maximum gains.

To milk cows or other cattle the requirements per day of drouth feed for body maintenance will vary from twelve pounds to a 600 pound cow to 24 pounds per day to a 1100 pound cow.

To sheep, three pounds per day. To horses and mules 8 to 10 pounds. To brood sows, 4 to 5 pounds per day.

A few days' feeding of this feed will soon demonstrate to you its superior value.

FEDERAL FUNDS SOUGHT FOR PARKWAY TO OZARKS

St. Louis, Feb. 18—Federal authorities have been asked by the Missouri State Planning Board to acquire the right of way and furnish construction funds for parkway from St. Louis to the Lake of the Ozarks, Kansas City and the Ozarks of Southwestern Missouri. An estimate of the cost has not been given.

Planning authorities suggested that the submarginal land division of the AAA could buy, with available funds, the right of way not already owned publicly, and that the PWA could provide the State Highway Department with money for a gravel road in the park out of the proposed new public works fund.

Part of the right of way would be in existing national forests and state parks. About 48 square miles would be embraced in the parkway, which would have an average width of 600 feet and extend 32 miles, region, including stream valleys. The route would lie in a scenic lakes, ridges and woods. Billbards and objectionable commercial developments would be forbidden.

The eastern end of the parkway would be at the prospective new bridge for U. S. Highway No 40 over the Missouri River, near Chesterfield. The parkway would pass Babler Memorial Park and follow Fox Creek in the western part of St. Louis County, then would run along Big River to Washington Park, Meramec Park and the new Lake of the Ozarks State Park. From the Lake of the Ozarks one branch would run to Kansas City by way of Clinton and State Highway No. 35 and the other branch would go to Lake Taneycomo and the proposed Table Rock dam and national forest.

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT 279,000 UNITS IN JAN.

Detroit. — Heaviest orders in several years and renewal of the Automobile Code indicate steady production at a high level for at least the next three months, a review of the industry by the Detroit News shows.

More than 1,200,000 passenger cars and trucks will be constructed during that period, it is estimated. These figures include all American plants, but most of these, of course, are located in the Detroit area.

The industry got off to a flying start. During January automobile production totaled around 279,000 passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada, and February production schedules call for the largest output since 1930.

Last year 2,885,000 cars and trucks were produced in the United States and Canada, and the trade expects a sales gain of as high as 25 per cent this year

Dr. J. J. Mackey surprised his Sikeston friends by bringing home an exceptionally fine looking wife that he married at Nashville, Tenn., Sunday, February 10. The bride was Mrs. Charles N. Newman and the marriage performed by the Rev. R. S. Thompson, pastor of the First Christian church in the presence of relatives and friends. On behalf of the good people of Sikeston The Standard welcomes Mrs. Mackey to our city and trusts her life in Sikeston will be a happy one. To Dr. Mackey, we extend congratulations.

If the four billion and a few odd dollars are appropriated by Congress as asked for by the President, then we would like the State Highway Commission to use a good part of that set aside for road building in Missouri to widen and straighten Highway 40 across the state, followed by the concrete paving of Highway 25 at the earliest possible date. The east and west road is the most traveled of any in the State and the interest of all traffic from the South to St. Louis in Highway 25 is that it shortens the distance some 30 miles. The large sum asked for by the President should be expended on permanent monuments of one sort or another so that in after years posterity can point with pride to what they got out of the depression.

Two publication days of The Standard this month have fallen on anniversaries of illustrious citizens and ex-presidents, that of Lincoln on Fberuary 12 and of Washington, February 22, today. Lincoln, an obscure, penniless man, and Washington, an aristocrat, and a man of wealth. Each an outstnding man, a leader of men. Lincoln, reared amid poverty, Washington surrounded by wealth and much sought after. Strong in character the memory of these men will always stand out in history as guiding lights for all to follow.

The home talent play given at the Auditorium Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, brought out good crowds that were pleased with the entertainment. The play was staged by Miss Mary E. Millard and given under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary. Kemper Bruton, Miss Ann Beck and Bob Nicholson took the leading roles and performed like old stagers. The program was rather long but each act had plenty of mirth to keep the audience awake. Good costumes added greatly to the scenes, especially in the square dance, where plenty of action was had. The skit, "She Done Him Wrong", leads some old timers to believe those taking part in the skit had done just that thing, or they would not have known so much about the technique. Miss Millard was a very pleasant little woman, who carries a good voice along with getting the most out of those taking part in the play with the least effort. We don't know the name of the play, but it was all right and had plenty of horse play which was pleasant. The Auxiliary received a little short of one hundred dollars for their part, which they will put to good use to assist those in distress.

And another thing that we are thankful for and that is that The Standrd does not carry a society page!

Some folks who have hardly a change of shirts are exercised about the Supreme Court gold decision. On behalf of the newspapers of Southeast Missouri, who should be greatly interested on account of stocks and bonds held, we'll say the decision never touched us. If you have a dollar it will buy just about as much now as in ordinary times. And if foreign countries don't like it we don't know what they can do about it. They never intend to pay their debts to the United States and likely never intend to buy any more of our stocks and bonds.

Concerning the news item, "Two Juveniles charged with numerous thefts," appearing in the Tuesday morning paper, I would like to state that what the boys got from the Scott County Milling Co., was five sacks of Juanita flour weighing five pounds each and two packages of cake flour the cost of which was not more than $3 at most, and a lantern. The statement that they got $30 worth of goods is absolutely false. The one who reported this news to The Standard evidently has it in for the boys. If the truth is told it is bad enough, without adding to it. We don't blame the editor but just want him to know the truth. Claud Stubblefield did not refuse to sign the bond filed for his release, neither did he state that he wished to go to the reform school. I thought it best to let him go on to Benton in order that he might realize what he was in to and be willing not to repeat his action.—J. D. Stubblefield.

WARDEN CAUTIONS BOYS AGAINST RETAINING FUR BEARERS WITHOUT PERMIT

Because four young men were fined recently for violation of one game law, F. I. Jones of Charleston, game warden in this district, warned Scott and Mississippi county boys yesterday against trapping fur bearing animals and keeping them for pets without first securing $5 permits.

Minimum fines of $50 and costs of $11 were imposed on each of the four men who pled guilty in Judge Joseph W. Myers' court this week to possessing fur bearers without permits. They are Howard Dumey, who lives three miles northeast of Sikeston; Robert Aldridge of Miner Switch; Ed Smoot of Big Opening; and Leonard Overton of Sikeston. Three of the fines were stayed upon payment of costs. Aldridge's case was dismissed on payment of costs.

According to Mr. Jones, this flat district is filled with foxes, who burrow deep caves in crop fields, where they bear their young. The animals are bothersome to farmers, he said, because teams frequently fall into the holes and because in the spring, when litters of foxes are young, the parents raid chicken houses.

Often farm boys capture young foxes, raise them, and keep or give them to residents of cities, where they are considered curiosities. They must secure permits, however, before such procedure is legal.

Game Wardens are always willing to help farmers combat foxes during the time the fur bearing hunting season is closed, and will dispose of the animals if they are notified. Last year Mr. Jones took twenty-six young foxes and one adult to Bonne Terre, Ironton, and Farmington, where they were welcomed by seasoned fox hunters.

Two litters of seven each were taken from Roe Shelby's farm.

On February 11, too, Bill Matthews and Charles French were fined for hunting out of season. French was fined $1 and costs in Judge William S. Smith's court, or a total of $13. Since Matthews was arrested for the second time last week, he was fined $5 and costs, of $17, when he was taken into Judge Myers' court. On February 7, he was fined $1 and costs for hunting out of season.

Whooping cough is prevalent in this community. Some of those afflicted with it are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. Fodge, and Mr. and Mrs. Freeman. We understand it is in a rather severe form.

In the sensational streak of 36 straight victories hung up by the Diehlstadt High girls' team, two Malone sisters have played a big part . . . Last year both Jo and Gaye Malone were on the team . . This year, Gaye has done the scoring . . . Many have asked Coach Earl Crader which of the sisters is the better basketball player . . . to which he answers that he doesn't know . . . Gaye did much of the blocking for Jo to score last year, and this year her average of 34 points per game has about equaled Jo's mark of last year . . . Coach Crader does say, however, that while Jo was a standout at forward only, Gaye is as good center or guard as she is forward . . . and can star in any department of the game.—Cape Missourian.

WHAT MISSOURIANS ARE DOING IN WASHINGTON

By Foust Roper

Washington, Feb. 18 — Baby members of congress soon get House-broken.

Representative Orville Zimmerman, Southeast Missouri's new Democratic congressman, has already taken the lead in securing a national park in Mississippi county.

And although Mr. Zimmerman is not a seasoned legislator—the present is his first elective office—everything is looking bright for the Three States National Park, as the project is known.

'The Forest Primeval'

"The tract consists of 21000 acres of virgin timber," he continued, "and is doubtless the largest piece of similar land in the Mississippi valley. As an example of how wild and untouched it is, there is one oak tree in the tract which is 27 feet in circumference at the base and rises 90 feet to the first limb. There are lakes, bayous and various water courses within its bounds, making it an ideal game preserve."

Timber authorities, in data the representative quoted, have recommended 50 per cent of the timber be removed at once in order to promote the growth of younger trees. It is estimated 80,000,000 feet, conservatively valued at $5 a thousand can be secured at once, netting the government $400,000. The remainder will be available in fifteen to twenty years, as authorities state that under such conditions as prevail in the tract—rich soil and plenty of moisture—trees will mature within one-third to one-half the time needed in hill country.

Cost of acquiring the park will be approximately a million dollars Mr. Zimmerman said. Thus, the project will be self-liquidating over a period of twenty-odd years.

Nelson Represents All

This naturally isn't a cue for every Hooverite to start looking for a postmastership, for jobs from the Nelson quarters will go only to Democrats. But aside from patronage matters, Mr. Nelson is quite impartial.

"I represent the Republicans as well as the Democrats of the second district. One party pays taxes as well as the other, and if I ignore members of the minority group there will be that intolerable condition of 'taxation without representation.'"

Left-Wingers

If being left-handed were to denote leftist views, politically speaking, the Missouri delegation would be far from the rather conservative group it is.

Besides Senator Truman, Representative Clarence Cannon and Reuben T. Wood are also southpaws, which brings the percentage of left-handed members of the Show-Me group to an even 20 per cent.

Whiners

The big fellows can't take it.

Following recent introductions of a bill to disband utility holding companies, agents of that group have started tear-jerking publicity operations.

Sample whimper from one of their broadsides: "We do not believe it is necessary to destroy these companies in order to prevent a recurrence of abuses, many of which have already been corrected, or to correct others which have occurred in individual instances and which the greater number of holding companies recognize should be corrected."

Washington's planners built the capitol facing the east, expecting the city to spread mainly in that direction. It was built up toward the northwest, however, and now most visitors approach it from the rear. . . Senate sessions these days are largely taken up by arguments between the irrepressible Huey Long and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader. Yet in all their clashes, they never refer to or address one another by their names. As provided in senate rules, it is always "the senator from Arkansas" and "the senator from Louisiana" . . . The flag is flown atop the White House only when the President is in town . . . A Missouri member got a phone call the other day from one of the newsmen who calls around regularly. "If any happens," said the reporter, "please hold it for me. I've been taken unexpectedly drunk."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

More About Photo-Greetings

(Left)—"The family is on the march to greet you." That, or something of the sort, serves to complete a greeting like this, made in the easy silhouette manner. (Right) — A little "dime store" reindeer made of glass, a toy Christmas tree and some sugar—that's all this table-top Christmas scene required.

A WEEK or so ago we talked about snapshot Christmas cards, but no one short discussion could possibly cover the subject adequately. A book could be written about it—but not by us. Instead we'll devote today's space to it.

The subjects referred to in our first talk of Christmas cards were deliberately selected from among the more obvious ones—firesides, holly wreaths, winter scenes of the home, and so on. Obvious though they are, any of them is capable of fresh, new interpretation—as individual as your own personality.

And, as you become more familiar with your camera and its capabilities, you'll discover many different approaches to any one idea.

You can use, for example, story-telling silhouettes to give novel twists to otherwise "ordinary" picture ideas. A good silhouette can be made of a young lady hanging up a bit of mistletoe, or of a little boy reaching for a Christmas tree ornament. Silhouettes, as you recall, are made with the help of a sheet, a doorway and a strong light.

You'll find plenty of Christmas materials—little reindeer, gnomes, sleighs, bells and a hundred other seasonable "props" in any "five-and-ten-cent" store. But guard against over-elaborate set-ups. The simpler the better.

Whatever you do, be careful to keep it in key with your own personality. If you are musical, a glimpse of your hands on the piano keyboard plus the score for a Christmas carol on the rack, would be much more appropriate than, say, a shot of your snow-covered home. Or, a pose with your head lifted, singing, if you find you look well that way.

A baby in the family, of course, offers plenty of opportunity for greeting snapshots. If this is the baby's first Christmas, so much the better. A semi-close-up of mother and dad, indoors or out, with the baby perched on dad's shoulders and all three waving cheerfully at the camera, should make a greeting of more than ordinary charm.

Christmas isn't far away now. You'll be wanting to send out your greetings soon. So don't delay!

By the way, don't let good opportunities slip by for taking unusual snow scenes. Maybe you won't use them this year, but there will be other Christmases when they'll come in handy.

For snow scenes in bright sunlight, remember to use a very small lens aperture. Otherwise, the intense brilliance of the scene will give you an over-exposed negative.

CANALOU SCHOOL NOTES

The Eighth Grade English Class enjoyed a Valentine exchange Thursday. They also learned how during their recitation period Valentine's Day originated and how a custom grows from time to time. After the exchange each pupil was treated to a candy bar.

Thursday afternoon the Junior Mozart Club had a Valentine party at their regular meeting period. Since Valentine's Day and Lincoln Birthday came the same week we decided to combine the two holidays and use both ideas in our program. The first of the period we had a short business meeting. Then the meeting was turned over to the Program Committee and the following program was enjoyed: How Valentine Day Originated— Lou Ella Newman, Lincoln's Birthday—Maggie Shell, Battle Tymn of the Republic, everyone. We then reverted to our childhood days and distributed Valentines to each member of the Club. At the close of the hour delicious home made candy was served.

Friday afternoon the Canalou Community club had as their guest, Mrs. Hunter, from New Madrid. The high school was invited to hear her give an interesting chalk talk.

Monday night, February 11, the Seventh Grade Story Hour Club had a Valentine Party at the school. The room was decorated with hearts and the Valentine motif was carried out in the refreshments. Games and continued stories furnished entertainment. Those present besides the club members were Mrs Oldham, Miss Nickerson, Miss Riley, and Mr. Meyer.

Friday night, February 15, Canalou teams met Anniston's teams on the Anniston court. The Canalou girls were successful, the score being 39 to 9. The Canalou boys were defeated by a score of 33 to 15.

Quite a number of old people have called at The Standard office to inquire the status of the old age pension. So far as we know it is yet in the wind stage with little prospect of it ever becoming a law. In the first place where is the money to come from to pay an old age pension if such a law is passed. The old folks have nothing to contribute to start the fund. The middle class and small business man is now taxed beyond his capacity to pay, the farmer is worse off than nothing and the man of means has his money planted where it cannot be dug up. Congressmen, Senators, members of the Legislature are talking for the folks back home, and that's that.

A Washington Party Menu

SOME people seem to outgrow holidays along with short skirts and hair bows. But we have never believed that holiday celebrations were the exclusive right of the very young. And February is a perfect month to prove our own youth with three grand excuses for a party—St. Valentine's Day and Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. The first two should be fun, but let's make the last the best, and entertain our friends with a very special Washington luncheon or bridge party. The following menu and recipes will make this February party a memorable delight to your guests:

Washington Luncheon
Cherry Juice Cocktail
Ripe Mission Olives Sweet Mixed Pickles
Potato Meat Dumplings with Mushroom Gravy*
Buttered Cauliflower
Corn Bread Sticks Apple Butter
Cheese Balls in Tomato Aspic*
Coffee Star Spangled Cake* Mints

(*) Indicates recipes given below

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

Potato Meat Dumplings with Mushroom Gravy (8 servings)—To 8 cups hot mashed cooked potatoes (3 large potatoes) add 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons finely minced onion, 1 egg, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and 1¾ teaspoons salt, blending thoroughly after each addition. Fry 1½ cups finely diced cooked beef, pork, veal or chicken in 2 tablespoons butter until brown, turning often. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Flour palms of hands well and form potato mixture into eight flat cakes about 3½ inches in diameter and ¼ inch thick. As each one is formed, place 2 heaping tablespoons of meat in center of cake, bringing potatoes up around meat to form a round ball. Drop balls into gently boiling water about 2 inches deep, cover tightly and cook for 10 minutes. Lift dumplings from water onto a heated platter, sprinkle with very finely crumbled toast (2 slices toast) and serve with Mushroom Gravy. To make gravy, brown 1½ tablespoons flour in same skillet meat was cooked in, add 1—10 oz. can Cream of Mushroom Soup and cook until it boils.

Cheese Balls in Tomato Aspic (serves 6)—Soak 1½ tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup Tomato Juice for 5 minutes. Over this pour 1 cup of boiling Tomato Juice and stir until dissolved. Add ¾ cup more Tomato Juice, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce. Set aside to cool. Blend 2 packages cream cheese with ¼ cup chopped nut meats and 1 teaspoon Evaporated Horseradish which has been soaked in 1 tablespoon cold water for 5 minutes, and prepare small cheese balls. Put 8 balls into each cold, wet individual mold, fill with the tomato aspic and chill until set. Turn out on watercress and garnish with Mayonnaise.

Star Spangled Cake—Heat ½ cup milk with 2 tablespoons butter to scalding point. Add 1 cup sugar and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Sift 1 cup pastry flour (sifted once before measuring) with 1 teaspoon baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat 4 egg whites until frothy, then add ½ teaspoon cream of tartar and 1 teaspoon Pure Cider Vinegar, and continue beating until whites stand up in a point. Add flour mixture to the milk and sugar and beat thoroughly. Fold in egg whites and ¼ teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon almond extract. Pour into a well greased and floured shallow, oblong pan (10 x 15 inches), or 2 smaller pans. Batter should be about 1/3 inch deep. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Cool. If large pan is used, cut cake in half. Cover the first with a layer of sliced bananas, and one of whipped cream or thick custard. Top with second layer of cake and spread with Current Jelly. Mark cake off into six servings with knife. Hold star stencil closely over center of each square, and sift powdered sugar over star opening with small sifter. Each time, lift stencil and shake off sugar.

To make stencil: Draw and cut out star, size desired (about 1½ inches between points) from center of a piece of cardboard. Have cardboard much larger than the individual squares of cake so the sugar does not go over sides when sifting.

And Now . . . STRATOSPHERE MAIL!

Hundreds of miles per hour measure the difference in transportation of Uncle Sam's mail over the period of three-quarters of a century. And Wiley Post, the "Modern Magellan", hopes soon to add yet another hundred by coursing the Winnie Mae through the "attic of the atmosphere."

Bartlesville, Okla., February 00.—The old Fort Logan stage coach (lower left) toiled its way through the passes of the Rockies in the gold rush madness of the '70's between Fort Logan and Helena, bearing the ominous legend "No responsibility assumed for safe delivery of passengers, express or gold". Fortunate to average 15 miles per hour on its hazardous itinerary, the old stage put some 600,000 miles on its iron tires before retiring from service, and now rests with other relics of frontier days on the famous Woolaroc ranch of Frank Phillips, oil man and aviation enthusiast, in the Osage hills of Oklahoma.

Many a "whoop and holler" from the days of the old Fort Logan express is the air mail service of today and when Wiley Post takes off in his Winnie Mae soon from Los Angeles, bound for New York City, what aviation experts had predicted for the vague future may be brought into the present—stratosphere mail.

Flying at a speed of approximately 400 miles per hour, the famous Post, who made a piker of Jules Verne by rounding the home planet in eight days, plans to complete his cross-country flight in the stratosphere in something like seven hours, carrying Uncle Sam's mail. Post's flight will be sponsored by Frank Phillips (inset) whose above-mentioned stage coach has for company at his Oklahoma ranch, the epoch-making Woolaroc plane in which Colonel Art Goebel, also backed by Phillips, won the Dole Race to Honolulu in 1927.

Stratosphere air transportation has long been predicted by aviation experts, and Post's success in the Winnie Mae will indeed hasten the day when commercial planes will span the continent with mail and passengers between breakfast and lunch.

MEYER FORMS BAND OF GRADE SCHOOL STUDENTS

During the remainder of the school year, Mr. Meyer will instruct pupils on instruments which they have bought.

Next year, the high school band now under the direction of Reid Jann, will be greatly enlarged by the inclusion of all the fifth grade students now being trained.

The personnel of the high school group will not be diminished after graduation since only a very few members are seniors. More than half of the sixty members now in the band are still in the upper grammar school grades.

The Bulldog girls will go to Diehlstadt Monday to compete with seven other basketball teams in class B of a district tournament. Eight teams of class A are also scheduled to play in the first round.

STATE HISTORICAL NOTES

The first entry of foreigners to into what is now Missouri was in 1541, when De Soto's expedition came up the Mississippi as far as Cape Girardeau. After De Soto had turned back into what is now Arkansas, no white men came to this section of the Mississippi Valley for 117 years, when French traders again visited the territory.

St. Louis was founded by Pierre Laclede in 1765. Twenty-four years later, it was a village of 800 people.

Daniel Boone and George Washington were born in 1732. the former in Pennsylvania and the latter in Virginia. Daniel Morgan Boone estabished a settlement on the north bank of the Missouri river some twenty miles west of St. Charles and a few years later was followed to Missouri by his father and other members of the Boone family. Daniel Boone died at the home of his son, Nathan Boone, in Marthasville in 1820.

At the close of the Spanish period in Missouri's territorial history, Ste. Genevieve, the oldest town in Missouri, was the center of population.

Moses Austin, born in Durham, Connecticut, before the Revolutionary War, became later a manufacturer of pewter in Richmond, Virginia. Learning of the lead mines in Missouri, he came to investigate them in 1796, and from 1798 until 1816 his plant produced 9,460,000 pounds of lead. Tiring of mining operations, Austin obtained a grant of land in Texas and evolved a plan for its colonization. Moses Austin died in 1821 and is buried in Potosi, Mo. His colonization plans were carried on by a son, Stephen Austin. Austin, Texas was named in honor of the family.

In platting the early French establishments in Missouri, the unit of and measure was the arpen, the arpen being about 190 feet. The lots were long, narrow strips those in the St. Louis community field being one arpen wide and about forty arpens long.

Between 1812 and 1820, ten new counties were organized in Missouri territory. In 1820, ten additional counties were created eight of which bordered on the Missouri river.

CHAPTER I

Spring came that year like a living thing. Flowers leaped from the mellow, odorous earth; birds swirled in the blue clouds, and came to earth, to sing of the heaven they had seen; trees bloomed overnight, from bare skeletons to shimmering lacy loveliness. Scents from a million spring flowers rolled up from the woods, making the air a constant, sweet perfume. Old citizens that year, nodded their heads.

"Never," they said, "never has Russia seen such a Spring." They sniffed the air appreciatively, spat forth their cheap tobacco, and set their gnarled hands to the plow again. Spring to a peasant wasn't Spring to a poet. Spring meant sowing, the hardest kind of work. And Spring meant hoping—hoping that the crops on whose success their lives were built — would be bountiful: hunger, privation, made lives short, they knew.

Spring is an awakening, and in more than one way Russia was awakening. The Czar, under whose despotic heel the greater part of Russia had trembled and been crushed without a sound, was getting old. Some said, he was going mad. And some—good men, who thought not of themselves, but of their children and their children's children—seized upon the Czar's decrepitude as a signal for work among the poor and the, dispossessed whose number were legion. Ideas of charity and kindliness, of democracy and righteousness, were being bruited about, always, of course, with an eye cocked to the ever-present agents of the tyrant, against whose word no peasant had a chance. But no man can be forever oppressed. Some day the spirit the tyrant thinks he has broken, rears up, and the tyrant falls, a victim of his own greed.

So it was not surprising, that lovely Spring morning, in a small farm to the south of Moscow that the hope of the slave, who feels the day he will be freed is near, was in the air. You couldn't help but keep your head erect, looking at the sky, and though you worked till your back ached, and a thousand fiends poked daggers in it, goodness and rest was on its way.

The sowers that year, those with the biggest backs and strongest shoulders, sang as they sowed, hurling with husky arms grain into the eager earth. The sowers were women, and women used to working in the fields. And if you could have stood by the side of a rich black field that morning, you would have noticed one of the sowers in particular. The sweep of her dusty body, the clean cut of her head, the grace with which she scooped up the grain from her apron and threw it out, like a cloud, must have caught your attention.

Katusha Maslova had been adopted by a princely house when she was a little girl; she had been brought up, almost a lady—but of course, not quite. She had worked in the fields, "so she would know the taste of labor" her "aunts" said; but hers had not been the strenuous lot of the average peasant girl.

So it was when her "superior", Matron Pavlovna ran up to her in the field that morning, her shrill voice splitting the still air, Katusha did not turn. The old lady had to grab her roughly by the shoulder before she stopped her work.

"What is it?" she asked, impatiently, in a low, melodious voice.

"What are you doing in the fields?" wheezed the old lady.

"I came here to help. There was nothing more to do in the house."

"Oh!" cried Matrona Pavlovna, "you'll catch it! Look at you! What do you think he'll say when he sees you?"

"He? — Who's he?"

"Oh you numbskull! The Prince! Prince Dmitri Ivanovitch! He's on his way here, now."

A look of horror struck Katush's face. "I thought it was tomorrow!" she cried, and dropping her grain, she ran pell-mell, very unlike the lady her "aunts" had wanted her to be, straight into the big house, and 'way up to the attic room that was hers and Matrona Pavlona's. In a fury of excitement, she began to dress, pulling her long brown hair from her shoulders with one hand, and yanking off her loam-covered shoes with another. She heard a carriage arrive downstairs, but she knew she mustn't stop.

Peasants Pay Tribute

On the front porch of the house all the mansion's servants were lined up, each with a simple gift for the young master. One had a cabbage, another a platter of bread and salt, still another a basket of eggs. And when Prince Dmitri Ivanovitch stepped from the carriage, his heart was warmed at his friends who thus came to greet him, in the simple way they had known for centuries, the only way they knew.

From each he took the gift, and smiled. The peasants smiled back, too, so infectious was his boyish charm. His mouth was firm, and his whole face was modeled on a fine scale, but through it poured the good will of one human being to another. He turned to one of his aunts.

"Why," he whispered, "do they give me food? They need it. I don't."

"Shh," she said, "it's a custom. It's always done."

"But," the young man expostulated, "they're oppressed. They're slaves. They're not treated like human beings."

"Hush," his aunt said, sternly, and knowing her young nephew's desire for socialistic reform, and fearing he might deliver himself of some of his sentiment before the servants—and that, dear, oh dear, would never do—she made a brief speech declaring the Prince was "tired, and needed rest" but he, "His Highness' thanks were evident." And half-towing him up the stairs, she deposited him in the hall, just as Katusha, running wildly down the hall to get outside in time to meet the Prince, slipped and fell, and went bumping down the stairs to land, a ball of feminine loveliness at the Prince's feet. His aunt's eyebrows went up at least two inches.

"Katusha!" they cried. "What IS the matter with you?"

Katusha leaped to her feet, opened her mouth and in delightfully naive way, poured out her heart-felt welcome to her master.

"Welcome, Dmitri Ivanovitch. I wish you every happiness. May God grant you happiness—and long life...and...er...er happiness!"

She stopped suddenly, and swallowed, blushed furiously, and then laughed, with all the abandon of a little girl.

The Prince had been staring at her, bewildered, not knowing who this sprite-like creature could be.

"Katusha—" he began, "—but no. Why, my goodness! Why...this is the most startling thing I've ever seen. I mean the way you've changed! Why six years ago—I can't believe my eyes—you were just a little girl with freckles!" You were a freckled cocoon. And now look at you!" he said, triumphantly. "You've changed into a butterfly. A beautiful white and golden butterfly!"

Love Defies Caste

Katusha nodded shyly at his outburst, and then, always the servant, meekly retreated, leaving the astounded Prince alone with his aunts.

He turned to them. "I can't get over her," he cried, "she's a raving beauty! ...why she's like some kind of dream—"

"—You're not forgetting she's a servant girl, are you, Dmitri?" his aunt cut in, sharply.

The boy shrugged his shoulders. "What difference does that make?"

The aunts looked at each other. "She's not to be treated as an equal," one of them said, severely.

"Why not?" Dmitri asked, wonderingly, "we grew up together."

"That's over now, Dmitri," the aunt said, half-gently. "You're both grown up, now. You're not of the same class—and you never will be. You must treat Katusha merely as a servant, Dmitri, and not as a friend."

"But that's cruel," Dmitri cried. "When Katusha and I were little we said we'd marry each other—that's how much we liked each other. Of course, I don't mean to marry her, but I like her, and she's a person and so am I, and just because she's born a servant and I a Prince doesn't make any difference."

"I forbid you to see her," one of the aunts said, frigidly.

"And I too," offered the other.

The boy looked at his feet, and his aunts stomped off, righteous and prim. When he raised his head, a smile was playing across his mouth. He looked towards the door Katusha had gone through. His smile broadened into a laugh, and he shook his shoulders, and took deep breaths. Spring was in him, and Spring—was in Katusha.

The Prince quickly walked to the stairway leading to his room. Only the harsh sound of the spurs—spurs meant to cut—sounded on marble steps as he climbed them.

PATROL RESPONSIBLE FOR CAPTURE OR 32 CHARGED WITH ROBBERY OF BANKS

Thirty-two persons who were either charged with participating in bank robberies in this district or in nearby states have been arrested by Troop E state highway patrolmen or through troopers' efforts since office was established here in 1931, according to a summary compiled by Sergeant R. R. Reed.

Of this total nineteen have been convicted and given prison terms totaling 303 years one is awaiting trial, two were killed; three were released; two escaped from jail after their arrest; two were acquitted; and three forfeitel bonds.

The first arrests on robbery charges by the Southeast Missouri division of the patrol were made soon after the Security Bank of Fredericktown was robbed on May 25, 1932. Convictions followed quickly. Fred Conway was sentenced to forty years in the state penitentiary and Pete Grego, Joe Modo, Sam Thomas, and Angelo Strazzo were each given ten-year terms.

On July 17, 1933, the Bank of Steele was robbed, bandits getting almost $5000. Of the six persons arrested by patrolmen, only one, Letta Hastings, was released for lack of efidence. T. L. (Lib) Matthews, however, was released when he turned state's evidence. The others, Arvey Hastings, Raymond Michie, Clyde Owens, and Mike Dulin, were all sentenced to ten years in the Missouri prison.

Four men, arrested after a robbery of the Hammond (Mo.) Bank were placed in jail to await trial. One of them, Walter Hartley, escaped but was later killed by troopers. Of the remaining three, Jack Dillon was given forty years; Sherman Hodges, ten years; and Orval Hosea, forty years.

These men were also arrested by Troop E highway patrolmen:

Claude Dickerson, escaped jail after he had been arrested and positively identified as a participant in three different bank robberies. He is still a fugitive. This winter, his companion, Gene Goodman, who broke jail with him, was kiled in a shooting scrape at an East St. Louis, Ill., tavern. Edward Gallop was arrested at Mountain Grove and released to Oklahoma officers.

James Gardner was killed by Troop D patrolmen after he had been arrested and made bond. Otho Hartley has been a fugitive since he escaped from jail.

Freeman Miller was acquitted after a trial and Gerald Parks was released after his arrest by troopers. Frank Walker made bonds of $5000 each on two bank robberies, later forfeiting them. He is still at large.

Edgar Whiteaker was released to Okahoma officers after his arrest, and is now awaiting trial. Robert Trolinger, one of the most desperate of criminals to ente this district in recent years, was given a ten-year penitentiary term after he was turned over to Nebraska officers, while Frank Layton was given five years and Geo. Ward ten years after their release to Oklahoma officers.

Supplying valuable information, troopers were largely responsible for the arrest and conviction, in most cases, of these persons.

Remus and Otho (Bish) Perkins, who disappeared while they were temporarily free on bond, and are now being widely hunted to answer many bank robbery charges; Claude Garner and Otis Stanfield, convicted and sentenced at Nashville, Tenn., to twenty years each in prison; Aaron Richardson, John Richardson, and Lester Sheals. Aaron Richardson was convicted and given a seven-year term in Arkansas, while Sheals was sentenced to serve twenty-one years, both for robbery of the Cooter Bank. John Richardson was acquitted.

BLODGETT BASKETBALL SEASON CLOSED

On February 12 the Blodgett boys and girls completed the season's schedule in games here with Anniston. The boys lost to Anniston by a score of 23 to 21, but only in the final 20 seconds of play. The girls defeated Anniston girls 53 to 6, two Blodgett teams splitting the playing time. The girls have won 5 out of 7 league games played, and lost the two by very small margins.

"ONE MORE SPRING"

Robert Nathan's Novel of Today

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of my beloved friend, Mrs. Hanna Storey, who departed this life four years ago today, February 22, 1932.
You bid no one a last farewell,
You said goodbye to none
Your loving heart had ceased to beat,
Before we knew you were gone.
Your big smile and kind ways,
Are pleasant to recall;
More and more each day I miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within my heart concealed;
Some day I hope to meet her,
Some day, I know not when
To Clasp her hand in the better land
Never to part again.
Sadly missed by a friend.
Gladys.

ASK THAT MAN BE SENT FROM NEW MEXICO TO FACE SCOTT CO. CHARGE

Benton, February 18—Prosecuting Attorney W. P. Wilkerson said he had prepared extradition papers asking the return from Clovis, N. M., of Tom Tate, 29, to face trial in connection with the $90 robbery of a railway station at Illmo, in 1933.

Sheriff Bob Thomas of Clovis, reported Tate surrendered there Saturday, asserting he committed the robbery and that friends of his suspected in the case were innocent. The cash and two suits of clothing were taken in the robbery.

Sheriff Thomas said Tate told him he gave himself up upon the plea of William and Joe Clark, brothers. Prosecutor Wilkerson said it had not been determined what effect Tate's surrender would have upon the investigation of others in the case.

Sheriff Joe Anderson at Benton said no charges had been filed against the Clarks.

Cole, is recuperating in Research Hospital, Kansas City, from an operation in which his right leg was amputated because of a strange swelling and infection. Bobby formerly lived here with his parents, Mr. Cole being a member of Tidd and Cole firm that did paving work here, while Mrs. Cole, now state director of women's relief work, acted as a foreman on the construction work. —Mexico Ledger.

David E. Blanton was endorsed for the office of state committeeman of the Missouri Young Democrats organization by members of the Young Democrats club of the tenth congressional district who convened in Poplar Bluff Tuesday for their first general convention. Mr. Blanton was first recommended by a committee whose report was later approved by district delegates. Lynn Ancell and Leo J. Pfefferkorn were members of the committee of four. Gordon Hazelrigg of Poplar Bluff, president of the Butler County Young Democrats club, was endorsed for "a state office."

Seven Sikeston Democrats attended the convention, at which Roosevelt policies were heartily approved, recognition of Southeast Missouri in the state organization was demanded, and delegates were urged to attend the state convention to be held today and tomorrow at the Statler hotel in St. Louis. Hubert Boyer will be one of Scott county's representatives at these sessions. It is possible that Lynn Ancell will attend. David Blanton plans to be present at the Saturday meetings.

Sikestonians attending the district sessions were Lynn Ancell, Harold Ancell, Robert Dempster, A. C. Barrett, Hubert Boyer, E. G. Buchanan and David Blanton.

Mr. Barrett is secretary of the temporary district organization: E. M. Munger fo Chaffee, director of organization and Mr. Hazelrigg of Poplar Bluff, vice-director These officers were chosen at a district meeting held here January 29.

Speakers at the Poplar Bluff meeting included Dwight H. Brown, secretary of state; Mr. Munger; Mr. Hazelrigg; Judge Robert I. Cope of the circuit court; John Dalton, marshal of the Supreme Court of Missouri; David Blanton; Mrs. Lena Dixon of Poplar Bluff; Mrs. O. E. Rigdon of Chaffee; Roger G. Taylor of Licking, Mo.; Earl Johnson, secretary to Dwight Brown; Mrs. Mary Hughes of Naylor; and former state Senator Russell L. Dearmont.

At a banquet held in the Ducker hotel Tuesday evening, congratulatory telegrams from state officials on the success of young Democrats in this district were read. These wires were sent by Governor Guy B. Park, State Auditor Forrest Smith, Attorney General Roy McKittrick, and Charles M. Hay of St. Louis.

TWO YOUTHS SENTENCED, FINED FOR MILL THEFTS

Chester Docking and Cecil Powers were each sentenced to twelve months in jail and fined court costs when they pled guilty in Judge Joseph W. Myers' court Thursday morning to stealing $50 worth of grain and flour from the Scott County Milling Company on January 31. The two jail sentences were stayed on good behavior. Docking, a juvenile, was granted permission by Porsecuting Attorney W. P. Wilkerson to waive his juvenile standing and be fined and sentenced in the justice of the peace court. Ordinarily juveniles are given hearings in the juvenile court at Benton.

A peace disturbance charge against George Taylor, a negro, was dismissed in Judge Myers' court yesterday morning. Recently, D. H. Page was awarded judgments of $136.46 against William Ramsey and of $12.02 against Clarence Couch on grocery bills.

OIL PLANT CONTRACT ALMOST SATISFACTORY

A letter received by City Attorney Robert Dempster this week from W. D. Lowe, of Newton, Miss., an official of the Mississippi Cotton Seed Products Company, indicated that the city's contract with the concern will be signed soon. Only a few minor changes in the agreement mailed last week were requested by Mr. Lowe. Since other arrangements necessary for the establishment here of a branch cotton oil plant are being completed, work on the mill will probably be started soon.

Dorman to be Tried at Cape

That Henry J. Dorman of Jackson, accused of attempting to exhort $10,000 from C. D. Matthews, Jr., president of the Bank of Sikeston, will be tried in the Cape Girardeau federal court was made certain Wednesday when the formal indictment against him was transferred to the Cape Girardeau court from the federal court in St. Louis. Dorman is now in jail in default of a $25,000 bond. The next court term will be in April.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The regular meeting of the Woman's club will be held at the home of Mrs. E. C. Matthews Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 26.

Mrs. Orear will have charge of the program and all members are urged to attend.

NEW MADRID COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

The annual school meetin falls this year on Tuesday, April 2, and in rural schools a mass meeting is held beginning at 2 o'clock p. m. In consolidated districts the election begins at 7 o'clock a. m. and closes at 6 o'clock p. m. At the annual meeting this year the voters will elect directors for regular terms, elect directors to fill any vacancies, vote for length of school term in excess of 8 month, decide on any proposed change in boundaries, determine the levy for school purposes and building fund, and designate their choice, by ballot, for a person to fill the office of county superintendent of schools.

In some school districts the ladies have not been taking any part in the annual school meeting and this seems to be a mistake, for the mothers are so close to the children and so vitally concerned in their welfare it seems that they ought to be extremely active in school affairs, even those who take no interest in political affairs. School matters should be held sacred and controlled by the highest motives possessed by human beings, and a mother's love will do that.

The County Boys' Basketball Tournament is being played at Matthews on the nights of February 20, 21, 21, and 23 beginning at 7:00, 6:00, 7:30 and 7:30 p. m. respectively. On Wednesday night six teams will play—New Madrid vs. Canalou, Morehouse vs. Risco; and Marston vs. Gideon. On Thursday night we have Parma vs. Portageville; Lilbourn vs. Matthews, winner of game 3 vs. Kewanee, and winner of game 1 vs. winner of game 2. On Friday night will be the semi- finals and on Saturday night the consolation and championship games. Three cups will be awarded. Matthews has one of the most spacious gyms in the county and we expect it to be filled with fans from all parts of the county.

The State Athletic Association has arranged for a Regional Boys' Basketball Tournament at Portageville on February 28 and March 1 and 2, which is one of the sixteen in the state and includes three counties—New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin. Teams participating in this event are Arbyrd, Caruthersville, Cardwell, Clarkton, Deering, Gideon, Hayti, Holcomb, Kewanee, Lilbourn, Malden, Marston, Matthews, Parma, Portageville, Risco, and Senath. This will be a gala event.

The railroad and utility tax was apportioned to the various school districts on February 4 and the county treasurer has credited the different funds of the rural districts with the specified amounts. Also checks have been sent to the treasurers of the high school districts for the total amount due them. We are also sending to each secretary of high school districts a proper distribution of these funds.

In making requisition for state aid this spring, secretaries should be sure to report only the railroad taxes which belong to teachers and incidentals, for if the money belonging to sinking interest and building funds is included, the state aid opportionment will be reduced that much. And we want every dollar of state aid that is due us. Last year the utility taxes to schools totaled $25,259.86 as against $20,996.69 for this year. The extra amount last year was due to a back payment.

Following is the amount of utility taxes paid to each district this year.

F. D. LAIR BUYS STRUCTURE HOUSING FURNITURE FIRM

The Lair Furniture Company on west Center Street will soon be housed in the "best equipped exclusive furniture building between St. Louis and Memphis," secured at a lower rental cost for quantity of space than any other in this district, F. D. Lair said this week.

On Wednesday, Mr. Lair bought the building he has occupied three and a half years from the Great Southern Savings & Loan Association of Springfield, Mo., Negotiations for the purchase were started before February 1, when Mr. Lair's lease on the structure expired. He was aided in the deal by Max P. Shelton, vice-president of the association, and Jess G. Harmon, general manager, both of St. Louis.

In about thirty days, remodeling work will be started on the furniture company building. One center entrance will be constructed in a modernized store front, to be fitted with a permanent, wooden awning suspended from heavy chains. Interior walls will be plastered and the ceiling finished.

Part of the second floor, which is now used for furniture displays, will be sealed and finished so that it may be converted into a more attractive exhibition room and may be easily heated in winter. The third floor will still be used for storage purposes.

With a total of 29,000 square feet of floor space, Mr. Lair will make monthly payments lower than rentals of other stores as large. Although it was not originally constructed primarily for a furniture company, the building which Mr. Lair occupies is particularly well suited for his business. The large first floor enables him to display numerous varieties of all kinds of furniture. Other models are kept on the second floor, which customers may reach by riding on a huge freight elevator capable of holding the largest piece of furniture. On the third floor additional stock is stored, and in the rear of the first story is a large covered loading space, where furniture may be unpacked even during inclement weather.

Four years ago, Mr. Lair opened a Sikeston store on Front Street after operating a furniture company in Charleston for many years. Because of immediate patronage of furniture buyers, he was required to move soon to larger quarters.
